DILLINGER AIDE IS SHOT, KILLED, IN OHIO PRISON

CHARLES MAKLEY ATTEMPTS BREAK PAL IS WOUNDED

Condemned Men Use Soap Pistols But "Bluff" Fails

Columbus, O., Sept. 22.—(AP)—Bullets spitting from riot guns of prison guards killed one John Dillinger gangster and wounded another today when they used weapons fashioned from soap in an attempted break from Ohio penitentiary's death row.

The effort to repeat Dillinger's "wooden gun" getaway brought death to Charles Makley and wounds to Harry Pierpont. A guard's hand was crazed by a bullet.

Elaborate precautions taken by Preston E. Thomas and his guards since Pierpont and Makley were brought here to await execution foiled the effort of the pair to bluff their way out.

Where Dillinger's "wooden gun" cowed guards at the Crown Point, Ind., jail and enabled him to walk to freedom, the alert Ohio guards answered the threat of the fake soap weapons with lead.

Condemned to Die

Makley and Pierpont had been condemned to die for the murder of Sheriff Jess L. Sarber of Lima, O., last Oct. 12. The sheriff was slain in a successful attempt of the condemned men and Russell Clark to free their leader from the Allen County jail.

Makley died of his wounds within an hour. Pierpont at first was believed seriously wounded but within five hours after the attempted break was returned to his cell in "death row."

Everything was quiet in the prison when the alarm bell sounded suddenly an ominous warning of trouble shortly after 10:30 a. m.

Warden Preston E. Thomas was telling a group of newspapermen of a letter to George Paullin, a prisoner.

Harry Pierpont, Dillinger Man, Cries In Cell

Columbus, O., Sept. 22.—(AP)—The cynical, wisecracking, contemptuous Harry Pierpont, Dillinger man felled by a bullet in an escape attempt, broke down and cried in his Ohio penitentiary cell tonight, Dr. George Keil, prison physician reported.

"He is depressed. He wants to die. He is crying in his cell," Dr. Keil said. "But his chances to live are pretty good."

The bullet struck him in the spine, coursed upward and came out the middle of the back, the doctor said. It paralyzed Pierpont's right leg but whether the paralysis will be permanent Dr. Keil declared he did not know.

HUGH JOHNSON THRU AS N. R. A. HEAD IS CLAIM

Friends Say Roosevelt Deals Directly With Subordinates

New York, Sept. 22.—(AP)—The New York Herld Tribune in a special dispatch from Washington tonight asserted that friends of General Hugh S. Johnson said he was "through" as national recovery administrator.

General Johnson, the dispatch says, returned to Washington Friday night after an absence of several weeks, but did not go near the NRA then or today.

"The White House records showed that since the General left the capital, President Roosevelt for the first time has been dealing directly with his subordinates in the NRA," the article continues.

"President Roosevelt, in a conference with General Johnson at Hyde Park on Sept. 10, left him in no doubt that his re-organizations plans for the NRA did not contemplate the General's continuance as administrator.

"Whatever the technical situation at the close of that conference, General Johnson's colleagues in the NRA were given to understand that he was, to all intents and purposes 'out.'

"Whether he actually resigned, or was asked to resign they declined to say.

"Thereupon, to use the words of General Johnson's colleagues, General Johnson 'disappeared' for three days. Upon his reappearance, he made his attack on organized labor in a speech at Carnegie Hall, New York, to a gathering of 3,000 representatives of New York code authorities."

President Roosevelt, the Herald Tribune story continues, was extremely irritated over the incident.

This speech, the dispatch says, did not represent the president's views and was not made at the request of the president.

"Friends said he (General Johnson) intended to go to his office in the NRA Monday," the dispatch says.

A development is expected upon the return of the president to Washington.

PONTIAC INMATES CONFESS PART IN AUGUST 18 RIOT

Convicts Had Planned to Secure Freedom By Rushing Gate

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 22.—(AP)—Seventy-two inmates of Pontiac reformatory have confessed to a part in the rioting Aug. 18 which brought death to two inmates, A. L. Bowen, director of the public welfare department, announced today.

The inmates confessed to participating in a riot and escape plot, Bowen said, that culminated during baseball game on the prison grounds when a group of prisoners attacked guards, set fire to the prison print shop, and vainly attempted to escape.

Two inmates were fatally wounded in the rioting, and a number of guards and prisoners injured. The ring leaders, after barricading themselves in the print shop, set fire to the structure. It burned to the ground while the Pontiac fire department waited outside the gates, unopened for fear of general escapes.

Twenty of the inmates confessed to playing leading roles in the plot, Bowen stated, and the other 52 merely joined in the plan which included a wholesale escape by the south gate.

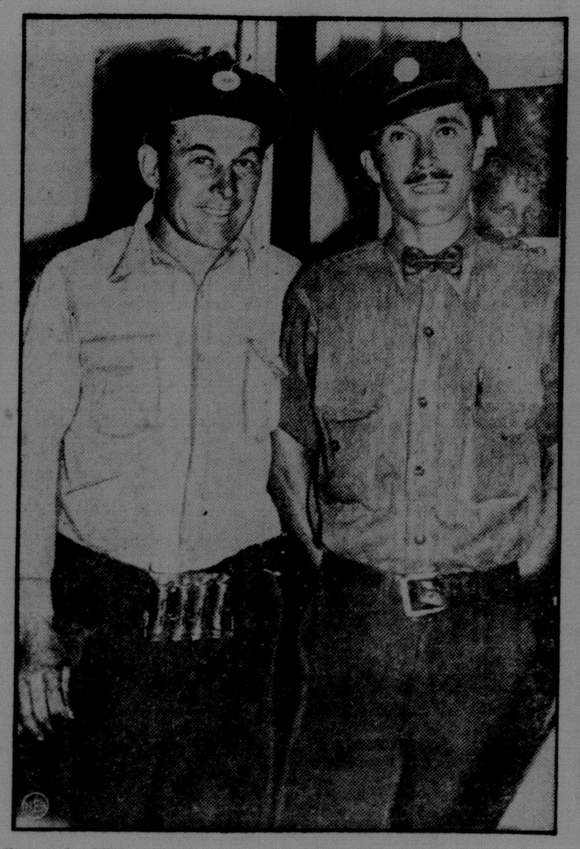
Found Clew That Led to Arrest



Vigilance of a filling station manager provided the clew that led to the arrest in New York City of Bruno Richard Hauptmann as a suspect in the Lindbergh kidnaping case. Walter Lyle, Harlem station chief, right, became suspicious when he was tendered a $10 gold certificate in payment for gas, took the license number of Hauptmann's car, and notified police. The arrest followed and $13,750 of the ransom money was found. With Lyle is shown John Lyons, attendant at the station.

Great Textile Strike Has Ended; Thousands of Workers Will Return to Looms Monday

By Richard L. Turner,
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Sept. 22.—(AP)—The great textile strike is ended.

Hundreds of thousands of workers who responded to the call of union leaders, tonight were ordered by those leaders to man the looms Monday.

Their decision to terminate the most gigantic walkout of the modern times followed a through study and discussion of a settlement plan advanced by the Winant mediation board and endorsed by President Roosevelt.

Jubilation reigned at strike headquarters. Officials from all sections of the industry, some bearing the scars of strike combat, slapped each other on the shoulders.

William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, at his side, Francis J. Gorman, energetic general-issimo of the strike forces, smilingly told newspapermen:

"We have gained every substantial thing that we can gain from this strike. Our strike has torn apart the whole unjust structure of NRA, lifting a load from all labor as well as from ourselves."

The strike committee, in a later statement, asserted:

"We have secured these definite things:

"1—An end to the stretchout.

"2—A method of determining hours on a basis of fact;

"3—A method of determining wages on a basis of fact;

"4—Practical recognition of our union;

"5—Reform on the whole administration of the labor provisions of the code, on a scale so sweeping that we must confess ourselves surprised at the sweeping character of the victory we have won."

Only a militant minority stood out for a continuation of the strike. It insisted the employers first guarantee unconditionally, the reinstatement, without discrimination of all who quit the mills.

Others held that such a guarantee was implicit in the settlement plan, which President Roosevelt, at Hyde Park, was preparing, meanwhile, to put into execution.

Green issued a statement expressing confidence that much good would flow from the settlement plan, "if applied and carried out in good faith." He added that in his "opinion the textile workers won a great moral victory."

The first step, expected soon, was the appointment of a board of three—one laborite, one employer, one impartial—to settle the recurrent disputes of the industry.

The labor department and the federal trade commission will proceed with a thoroughgoing statistical study of the economic condition of the industry, wages paid, hours worked, living costs in mills towns, and differences in the compensation of the skilled and unskilled.

A second board will be named by the first to regulate the "stretchout," the southern workers' graphic name for much complained of practice of increasing the number of machines to which an operative is assigned.

INCREASE CORN LOAN LEVEL TO 55 CENTS BU.

Will Apply To Both New And Old Grain Under Seal

Washington, Sept. 22.—(AP)—The Farm Administration today moved its corn loan level one step nearer the parity price by increasing from 45 to 55 cents per bushel the rate at which it will end on this year's crop.

The loans, to be made by the Commodity Credit Corporation under a $100,000,000 grant from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, also will apply on any old grain now under seal which farmers wish to continue to hold.

This development nullified the extension of present corn loan to January 1, 1935, making it necessary for farmers to have corn now stored reinspected and re-sealed before October 15 in order to extend their loans at the new rate.

Farmers obtaining loans under the new program must take out fire, lightning and windstorm insurance and satisfy the requirement that temporary or unsuitable cribs must not be used in sealing old loan corn again.

The government provided an additional safeguard in setting up this year's plan by declaring that holders of notes, whether the government or private banks, may call the loans when corn reaches 85 cents per bushel or above on the Chicago market.

This provision, it is believed, will help to prevent an undue rise in price since the government may call loans and require marketing of some corn if the level tends too high.

The loans will be available in Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Ohio and South Dakota. Corn to be stored must be No. 4 ear corn or better. Loans will mature on June 30, 1935.

CONVICT SLAYER

Taylorville, Ill., Sept. 22.—(AP)—Hollis Butterfield, 27, a mail carrier, was convicted today of the murder of his wife, Zelma, 23, and sentenced to 35 years in the penitentiary.

The state charged he killed his wife, an expectant mother, as she lay sleeping in their home last October 22. The death penalty was asked.

A confession he was alleged to have made during questioning while submitting to a lie detector last March was repudiated by him on the witness stand. He claimed she committed suicide.

COLONEL TO TESTIFY BEFORE GRAND JURY WEDNESDAY WHEN HAUPTMANN PROBE IS OPENED

CONVICT KNEW OF HAUPTMANN KIDNAP PLANS

Prisoner Declares He Conferred With Lindbergh

By Clyde A. Farnsworth
Associated Press Staff Writer
(Copyright, 1934, By The Associated Press).

Columbus, O., Sept. 22.—(AP)—A convict in Ohio penitentiary who claims to have been a fellow pickpocket with Bruno Hauptmann in New Jersey declared publicly today that he knew of Hauptmann's plans for kidnaping the son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh weeks before the baby was taken from his crib.

The prisoner, George Paullin, 27, alias, Paul, serving a sentence for robbery from Youngstown, O., also said he had conferred with Col. Lindbergh in an attempt to have the famous flier follow a plan to contact the abductors of the child. Paullin said the plan was not followed.

Smoking one cigaret after another, Paullin sat beside Warden Preston E. Thomas as he told newspapermen of his acquaintance with the German ex-convict and his knowledge of the kidnaping.

Wanted to Save Child

"I only wanted to save the life of the child," the prisoner said in commenting upon a secret but fruitless journey to New Jersey with the warden and another officer when the hunt for the kidnapers was at its height. It was on this trip to New Jersey that Paullin said he talked with Col. Lindbergh. Warden Thomas verified this statement, declaring he was present when Paullin talked with the distraught father.

A startling disclosure which Paullin made months ago and which led to the trip east was that he had received a code letter from Hauptmann, which read, when diciphered:

"Will kidnap Lindy baby. Hope for me."

Other highspots in his story included:

The charge that Hauptmann, before Paullin was imprisoned here, told him Colonel Lindbergh would be a good subject for a "big touch."

A declaration that he did not believe Hauptmann intentionally killed the Lindbergh child.

A promise that he will face Hauptmann and accuse him face to face if Hauptmann's inquisitors desire it.

The strange chain of circumstance which Paullin declared linked him, Hauptmann, and the kidnaping of the infant was outlined first by Warden Thomas, a few hours before Paullin was called into the presence of newspapermen to relate the story himself.

The warden read aloud from a statement he had prepared, incorporating the verbatim content of a code letter Paullin had said he received from Hauptmann, with whom he said he had associated in pocket-picking in the east.

The warden turned from time to time to Paullin, who volunteered his approval of the entire statement.

The whole fabric of the tale might easily be shattered, the warden said, and attributed to an over-worked imagination were it not for the corroboration coming from Miss Amanda Thomas, his daughter and penitentiary mail censor.

Upon news of Hauptmann's arrest as a possessor of part of the Lindbergh ransom money, she recalled having seen the name "Bruno" and sometimes "Hauptmann" signed to mail entering the prison addressed to Paullin.

At the time of Paullin's overture in what he said was an attempt to save the life of the Lindbergh baby, he showed Warden Thomas a note he said had been mailed by Hauptmann. That was after the kidnaping but the note, Paullin said, had been received before the baby was abducted. The note told briefly of the plot.

At that time, Paullin said, he had torn Hauptmann's name from the bottom of the missive and had removed the name and return address from the envelope it came in. These, he said, were destroyed as was the note itself after Paullin decided it for the warden.

Paullin entered the penitentiary Jan. 25, 1930, under a 10 to 25-year sentence for robbery at Youngstown, O. The correspondence between Hauptmann and himself, relating to the Lindbergh kidnaping, and Paullin's futile attempt to negotiate for the return of the child came while he was a prisoner.

Paullin blamed his failure in the attempt to locate the child to a lack of co-operation between him and New

2 POLICEMEN, TWO ROBBERS ARE KILLED

Chicago Officers Are Shot Down During Gun Battle

Chicago, Sept. 22.—(AP)—Two policemen were killed an hour apart today, each by a cornered and desperate gunman, but both were speedily avenged.

Policeman Louis Furst, 34, was dead; so was James Franklin, an escaped convict who shot Furst. Policemen Thomas Torpy, 38, died a few minutes after Clifton Myrick, the robber who wounded him, was killed by other police.

Furst, answering the cries of a girl clerk, ran into a real estate office on South State street to meet Franklin, who had just rifled the till, at the door. Franklin opened fire, mortally wounding the policeman.

Then he dashed two blocks to an apartment brushed past a housewife and hid in a pantry. Squads called by radio laid seige to the place as a thousand persons looked on.

A detail located the pantry and Franklin fired through the door. The squad riddled it. When the door swung open, Franklin's body fell forward.

An hour later Policeman Torpy and his mate, Robert Galbraith, waited in another apartment in the same district to trap the sixth member of a negro gang suspected of 40 robberies and two murders. Myrick entered, saw Torpy, shot him four times.

Galbraith fired as the negro fled, dropping him. But enroute to a hospital the negro rose from the floor of the patrol wagon, attacked Policeman John Hogan and seized Hogan's gun.

Policeman Clinton Towle drew first and killed the prisoner.

Franklin was committed to the Jefferson City, Mo., penitentiary on June 6, 1932 for robbery, it was discovered after a finger print check. He escaped September, 1932.

REPUBLICANS TO CONTINUE ATTACK ON THE NEW DEAL

Democratic Chieftains Will Appeal For Support of President

By Cecil B. Dickson

Washington, Sept. 22—(AP)—A three-way campaign for offices to be decided by the November elections struck full stride today on as many fronts.

Giving principal atention to the margin of control to result in the seventy-fourth congress, Republicans planned to intensify their attack on the "New Deal." Democratic chieftains will continue an appeal to the country for the election of an overwhelming Roosevelt assembly.

Seeking to drive a wedge between the two old parties in the hope of putting a national ticket into the field in 1936, advocates of the new Progressive third party movement originated in Wisconsin meanwhile pressed a campaign on more liberal tenets than Democrats.

While Postmaster General Farley is making a swing in northwestern states advocating the continuance of the New Deal, Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, and Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York, both classified as Republican independents, made known they would go into Wisconsin, Minnesota and probably other so-called Progressive states to campaign for other leaders of the third party movement.

SURGEON WILL GAIN FREEDOM FROM JOLIET

Dr. H. E. Webster Has Served 22 Years In Prison

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 22.—(AP)—Only the completion of a few formal records remained today between Dr. Harry Elgin Webster and freedom after 22 years in the penitentiary.

Dr. Webster, Chicago surgeon whose confession that he murdered Bessie Kent Webster created a sensation in 1912, was granted a parole today. By Monday or Tuesday, Webster will be a free man after his parole papers are completed, prison officials announced.

Behind him, Webster will leave a record as a perfect prisoner—ahead of him lies an attempt to renew his surgical practice. Never in the 22 years of his prison life was he given a demerit in the prison merit system and never was he absent for sickness.

His surgical ability brought him respect within prison walls where he was called on to treat prison colleagues in emergencies. An old man now at 62, Webster faced the future with alternating bewilderment and joy.

"I'm going back to Dixon—back to my mother who is 82 years old," he said, "I'm going to show her the faith she has kept in me all these years hasn't been misplaced." His mother has visited him every week until two years ago when she became too feeble, Webster said.

Prison gates clanged behind Webster in January, 1912, two days after he had been convicted. On his own confession, of slaying his wife, Bessie, whom he married bigamously he was given a life term.

In January, 1911, Webster married Zoe Varney of Cedar Rapids, Ia. After a short honeymoon she went home to visit her parents, but she had hardly left, when Webster married Bessie Kent, a marriage which he later said was forced.

When Bessie Kent followed him to Dixon, Webster stabbed her fatally with a pocket knife while they were driving in the country. At first he denied the deed, but later made a confession.

WOULD REORGANIZE

Freeport, Ill., Sept. 22.—(AP)—The George D. Roper corporation of Rockford, manufacturers of gas ranges, today filed a petition in federal court asking an order to permit reorganization under an amendment to the bankruptcy act.

The order, which asks that the reorganization be made tonight interrupting operations at the factory, was entered in Chicago by Judge Charles E. Woodward, naming Mabon P. Roper, president of the corporation, and Sleby L. Large, Rockford lawyer, as trustees.

KILLED BY AUTO

Vandalia, Ill., September 22.—(AP)—Joe, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Ritchey, died this afternoon from injuries suffered today when hit by an automobile driven by Dr. G. H. Lensgraf.

The accident occurred near town on state route 2, near where another son, Donald, 11, was fatally injured 18 months ago.

TO OPEN HOSPITAL

Tuscola, Ill., Sept. 22.—(AP)—Final arrangements were completed today where the Sarah A. Jarman Memorial hospital will be operated by five members of the Douglas county board of supervisors. The hospital, closed since April 10, 1933, has become county property and will be supported by taxes.

SAMUEL FOLEY CLAIMS HE HAS AIRTIGHT CASE

Suspects Handwriting Identified By Experts

By Francis A. Jamison
Copyright, 1934,
By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 22—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh will hurry east to lend his aid against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, the alien-ex-convict linked by a chain of incriminating evidence to the kidnap-killing of the flier's first son.

Lindbergh telephoned this word from the Pacific coast to H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the New Jersey state police.

Dramatically, it came in the same afternoon with the spectacular statement of an Ohio convict that Hauptmann wrote him before the abduction, in a code letter, of a plan to kidnap the Lindbergh's first-born and the disclosure by District Attorney Samuel Foley, of the Bronx, that every one of the ransom notes had been positively identified by experts as the writing of Hauptmann.

Interview Wife

Mrs. Hauptmann, discussing the charges against her husband for the first time tonight in an exclusive interview with the Associated Press, denied the Ohio convict's story entirely and said neither she nor her husband ever heard of him.

Near exhaustion after long days of working to aid her husband, weary from the ordeal of questioning by investigators, Mrs. Hauptmann declared that in 1932, keeping her job as a waitress after her marriage, she worked every Tuesday and Friday night, and that Hauptmann could not have been in New Jersey the night of the kidnaping.

It was on a Tuesday night, March 1, 1932, that baby Lindbergh was stolen from his crib at Hopewell.

"It seems," Mrs. Hauptmann said, "the world is taking for granted the guilt of my husband in this horrible affair, without having been given the opportunity to hear a coherent statement from either him or myself."

Colonel Schwarzkopf hurried to the Bronx from New Jersey after his message from Lindbergh, and conferred with Foley.

At Santa Monica, Calif., the airplane in which Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh flew westward last week was taken from a hangar and refueled.

The District Attorney announced Lindbergh would testify before the grand jury when evidence is presented to substantiate the charges that Hauptmann extorted the $50,000 ransom paid fruitlessly for the Lindbergh baby.

"We have," Foley declared, "an airtight extortion case against Hauptmann."

It was presumed, too, that Lindbergh would give his fullest aid to clearing up other phases of the case.

Department of Justice agents expressed keen interest in the statement of George Paullin, inmate of the Ohio state prison in Columbus, who gave the warden Preston Thomas the coded letter which contained this information:

"Will kidnap Lindy Babe. Hope for me."

In relating the convict's story, the warden said Paullin volunteered the information soon after the kidnaping, on March 1, 1932, in the hope of saving the baby" that Paullin knew Hauptmann at Perth Amboy, New Jersey; that they were both in the same gang of pick-pockets and petty racketeers.

The warden said he, a guard and Paullin went to Hopewell to tell New Jersey authorities about the convict's letter: But that the officials did not appear much interested.

While the letter Paullin said Hauptmann wrote him, at the time it was seen by the warden, had no signature on it, the convict declared he had torn off the signature.

This was corroborated by the warden's daughter, Miss Amanda Thomas the prison censor, who said she remembered the signature of "Bruna" and also remembered seeing the name "Hauptmann" on letters sent to Paullin.

The code used in the letter was the second word of each sentence. The letter (with second words in parenthesis) read:

"I (will) write you a few lines today to let you know that all is well. Old (kid) how I wish you were here with us. A (nap) is taken by Mildred every afternoon since she came from the hospital. Mr. (Lindy) went to Red Bank last week and while skating caught a severe cold and had pneumonia. Old (baby) wish you could

Things We Can't Expect

"A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid; neither do men light a candle and put it under a bushel." This ancient saying signifies that there are some things we do not expect to happen in the normal course of events. If a city is built on a hill, it can be seen from a distance, and nobody would expect to miss its location. A candle is not lighted to be concealed, that is certain.

Neither can we expect to pour water out of a container of given capacity in unlimited quantities; that would be impossible. Likewise we cannot expect to draw money out of the U. S. treasury in uncounted millions, unless we put a like amount into the treasury. We cannot expect to cut down the trees of our forests and grub up the stumps, and still have an inexhaustible lumber supply or to wear out our soil by continued use, without some means of rejuvenation.

There was a time when we thought the natural resources of this country were inexhaustible. We have discovered that they are not, and that we must rotate our crops and fertilize our land, replant our forests and restore conditions that will foster rainfall. We have also had the idea that our material wealth could stand any drain, that our capital structure could be spent lavishly.

We are due to discover that wealth can be dissipated and destroyed, and we had better discover it before we make serious inroads on our resources. Wealth must be constantly created in order to keep up a steady flow and do its work in society. For nearly five years we have been spending, rather than creating wealth, and it is about time we recognized that in the normal course of events this cannot continue.

Strike Settled

The great textile strike is settled. Its only bid for greatness comes from its wide extent; otherwise it stands out as another instance in the ruinous industrial warfare which our civilization yet seems powerless to prevent.

The strike cost thirteen lives. Workers lost $15,000,000 in wages. Factory owners lost other millions in orders for goods and failure to meet business contracts. At times during the strike there were enough guardsmen on duty in various states to make the cost to taxpayers $50,000 a day.

Now that the strike is ended, surely the country can go forward to recovery. One business expert remarked recently that he thought pessimism had been overdone, and that October would see a definite pickup in business all along the line. The settlement of the strike lends encouragement to that view.

There is also a forecast of rising grain prices and the resumption of trading, as better labor conditions bring back confidence. Will it last? It is up to the American people to make it last, to quit predicting disaster and to put their best foot forward.

It might be a good idea for every citizen to be satisfied with his lot for a time and try to make the best of it and to improve it if he can. It might be another good idea if the government would give business a little better break and give business men a chance to see whether they can come out of the depression. With the strike clouds removed, the skies are brighter, and there is hope, which should be fostered, rather than discouraged.

The Alien Problem

Again the nation is confronted with the alien problem. Some fifteen years ago a young man entered this country as a stowaway, and quietly went to work as a carpenter. He found it easy enough to keep his entrance into the country a secret, as there was no means of keeping track of aliens.

In his home town in Germany, he was known as a bad boy. In fact his badness led to his flight to the United States. Today Richard Hauptmann is accused of connection with the worst crime of the century, the kidnaping and murder of the Lindbergh baby. He has been living on the money obtained as ransom.

This crime might have been prevented had it been possible to check up on Hauptmann, to find out whether or not he was a good citizen and had a right to be here. He was never a citizen, but only a fugitive from justice, and police should have known that fact.

There should be some sort of alien registration so that all who come into the country from other lands can be watched. If they prove honest and enterprising, such supervision might be means of helping them to succeed. If they prove otherwise, the same supervision would prevent them from harming society and result in their deportation. The fact that Hauptmann came as a stowaway should have been enough to cause him to be sent back to Germany.

A Land of Disaster

Japan has been a land of disaster for several years. One natural catastrophe after another has overwhelmed sections of the island empire, until it seems that the fates are conspiring to change the course of Japanese life, or to teach the nation a much needed lesson.

Earthquakes, fires, tidal waves and now a typhoon, which has cost more than 1,600 lives and a property loss of $300,000,000 dollars, have followed in quick succession. Thousands of the population have been wiped out, and hundreds of thousands have lost their all.

Yet the loss of life has not overcome the gain in population for a single year. Japan is overcrowded and seeks expansion. The faith and courage of her people rebuild the ruins of her cities, while newly born Japanese babies replenish the population. Like the phoenix, the nation rises from its own ashes, a more powerful and determined people than before.

To inquire into the reason for the natural calamities that have befallen the Japs may seem a waste of time. Faults in rock strata, location of the islands within the storm area, failure of the people to build substantial houses, all may be ascribed as reasons. But the disasters are serving as a school of hard experience for the Japs, from which they may learn valuable lessons. They may use that knowledge in their future program of expansion.

The Storage Plan

(Pennsylvania Farmer)

In recent addresses several persons in authority have proposed that the government create reserve stocks of grain which "shall be held definitely off the market" to insure the country against shortage on account of crop calamity. That is merely another iridescent dream. There is no such thing as an accumulation "definitely off the market." It may not be for sale at any particular time and so not then on the market. But it is always a weight on the market, for everybody knows it is available at some unknown time, under some unknown conditions, and in the hands of officials whose decisions are not based on commercial considerations. For these reasons it is even a greater weight on the market than the same quantity would be in private hands, where its sale or replacement would be in accord with the known interest of its holders.

With huge stocks at the disposition of officials there can be nothing but uncertainty with all its baleful effects. The Federal Farm Board gave us a very good lesson on this point which should not be soon erased. Moreover there is no need of such a public accumulation of grain.

For a century and a half the business institutions and men who handle our crops have amply protected the country against famine or even serious shortage of bread. If they are not hampered by undue interference they will continue to do so—and that without creating uncertainties which are a constant menace to all concerned in production, manufacture and trade.

SO THEY SAY

Everyone seems to be out of step but Mr. Gorman and his strike leaders. Mr. Gorman wants his cake, but he wants to eat it.
—Peter Van Horn, Chairman Silk Code Authority.

Give us some bread and meat and we'll get out into the country to get some beans.
—E. L. Sandefur, treasurer textile strike relief committee at Gastonia.

We oppose Russia's entry because Russian communism seeks to take root everywhere and because its ambition is a world revolution.
—Giuseppe Motta, League of Nations representative from the Netherlands.

Anyone who thinks that the government is going to underwrite the strike had best get it out of his head.
—Harry Hopkins, federal relief administrator.

I seem to attract friendships, not romance. —Jean Harlow.

The state should keep the individual; not the individual the state. —Col. Theodore Roosevelt.

Under the Recovery program we have done more proportionately than any other industry in America has thus far done for its employes.

The New Deal in Washington

During the absence on vacation of Rodney Dutcher, Journal-Courier Washington correspondent, Willis Thornton will write the daily Washington column.

By WILLIS THORNTON
Journal-Courier Washington Correspondent

Washington, Sept. 22.—The Home Owners' Loan Corporation has run into that "dead center" position which is the fate of government agencies which move into fields hitherto sacred to private business.

On one hand there is always one crowd of people demanding government efficiency and economy—"businesslike management" of the government undertaking.

On the other are the people who want government leniency, concessions and who say "if the government acts just like a private business man, why should it function in the field at all?"

HOLC charges for investigating mortgage applications are causing the friction today. Disappointed applicants say they are being charged up to $30 to find out they can't get loans.

That is, they applied. An examination of their credit was made. Title to the property was examined. There was a formal appraisal. Then the loan was refused.

Now the HOLC is asking for the cost of those services, even though the applicant got no loan.

"Why not?" it asks. "We had to pay out government cash for the appraisals, the title searching. We aim to run the HOLC on a businesslike basis. It's not our fault if the property proved ineligible."

But the applicant is likely to say "Huh! Why didn't they tell me in the first place I couldn't have the loan? I should pay for the privilege of finding out they can do nothing for me!"

Compromise Planned

What'll probably be done is that the HOLC will try to collect in cases where the application was voluntarily withdrawn, where misinformation was given, or where a title was found defective—in other words, where the applicant was at fault.

But in cases where everything was on the level, but where the HOLC office simply decided against the loan as a matter of policy (for instance, because the HOLC valuation put it outside the legal limits, even though other honest appraisal might allow it) the government will probably take the rap.

The HOLC is having enough trouble, anyway, getting itself decentralized, establishing branch regional offices. It's opened them now in Atlanta, New York, Boston, and San Francisco, and will soon have them in Cincinnati and Detroit.

Until then, payments on HOLC mortgages are supposed to be made to the central HOLC office in Washington. Lots of people haven't understood this and have tried to pay at their banks, which couldn't take the money.

Payments Go Up

Payments on HOLC mortgages are beginning to increase—have been increasing ever since April 27, since when a moratorium on principal payments has been allowed only by permission of the corporation.

Decentralization into regional offices should unsnarl some of the red tape, for it takes a lot of mail to handle correspondence on half a million home mortgages.

Personnel for the regional offices will be sent out from Washington, the HOLC says—don't figure on getting a job there.

Some Silver Linings

Here's a strange sign of business recovery: Skilled Patent Office men are again leaving the government service. In normal times the government can hardly keep a staff at the Patetn Office—so many leave to take better jobs in private industry patent units.

In the last few years, almost nobody left the government office—now they're beginning to sift away again. It means the private industries which have let their patent departments go to seed are building them up again.

STARS OF "SHE LOVES ME NOT"

Bing Crosby and Miriam Hopkins, featured players in the latest comedy success, "She Loves Me Not" which also includes in the cast Kitty Carlisle, Elliott Nugent and others. This new comedy begins a three-day showing at the Fox-Illinois theatre Sunday. The picture is heralded as another big hit for the crooner Crosby.

. . . Another good sign: Motor tourists spent 20 per cent more this summer than last, says the AAA (the gasoline AAA, not the oats and hay one. . . . One of the firms recently ordered to surrender its Blue Eagle for violating minimum wage provisions of its code was named the Honest Shoe Shop. . . . (A chisel by any other name would be as sharp). . . . The Department of Justice is heartened by reports that all types of crime are decreasing, one of the sharpest drops being in auto thefts. Attorney General Cummings is really serious about ending the mounting crime wave of the last few years, and personally took great satisfaction in seeing the recent figures.

Four Agencies to Begin Joint Drive for Funds Oct. 16

A joint campaign of four agencies in this city to secure funds for their maintenance during the coming year will begin Oct. 16. The four agencies are the Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Y.M. C.A. and Salvation Army. While the campaign for funds will be made jointly, each agency will collect its own pledges.

Committee chairmen for the drive have been announced as follows:

General chairman—Gust Bergquist.
Speaker—Chester Colton.
Arrangements—Rev. Harry Lothian.
Publicity—Max Tschauder.

Other details of the campaign will be announced later.

First Meeting of Club at Sinclair

The first meeting for the season of the Independence Community club was held Friday evening at the Independence school near Sinclair, with a large attendance. Following a brief business session, a literary and musical program was given.

To the Editor of The Journal-Courier:

Aboard S.S. Il De France, Sept. 22—I tell you, you can't beat England for her justice. Brought some English papers on board and it tells of a man who killed his nagging wife and the judge give him a year, but apologises for it. Said he was compelled to do it under the law.

Europe's awful quiet now, don't hear much war talk, so I guess that means one will break out. That's when they have 'em when there ain't any reason.

Eight Awarded Cash Prizes in Letter Contest

Mrs. Kempter, Jacksonville, Wins First Prize; Others Named

Eight persons are awarded cash prizes this week for their letters answering the question: "Why Do YOU Prefer the Emporium as Your Store of Fashion?" Five others win guest theater tickets as consolation honors.

Mary Cathryn Sturdy Kempter, Meredosia Road, Jacksonville, is the winner of first prize of $5.00, her letter being judged best.

Second prize of $3.00 goes to Miss Kate E. Hoover, Rural Route 5, Box 90, Winchester; third prize of $2.00 is awarded to Miss Ruby Smith, Murrayville; and $1.00 prizes go to each of the following: Anna M. Baldwin, 313 East College avenue; Mrs. Maud Dine Wilson, 1122 West State street; Mrs. J. E. Stout, 27 West Douglas avenue all of Jacksonville; Mrs. Henry C. Schall, Rural Route 7, and Mr. M. C. Heaton, Rural Route 2, Jacksonville.

Guest theatre tickets for admission to the Fox-Illinois theatre await the following at the Emporium: Mrs. R. R. Phillips, Chapin; Mrs. J. M. Meek, Rural Route 4, Carrollton; Mrs. Lillie Moore, Athensville; Mrs. Emma Crouse, Rural Route 2, Jacksonville, and Dorothy Graves, Virginia. Winners of cash prizes are being notified by mail.

Mrs. Kempter gave a very convincing reason for her preference of the Emporium in this manner:

"For years the Emporium has been my haven for smart, new and fashionable things. When at school in the East, I was constantly asked where I purchased my clothing. I have amazed a number by the fact that they came from the Middle West and not Fifth Avenue."

Another Contest Today

In this edition there is another contest question announced. It only requires a simple letter to win, and the more convincing the attitude apparent through the letter itself, the better chance of winning. Make the latter simple, but be sure that yours does not contain more than fifty words, as required by the rules. Sit down now, and write a simple letter answering the question this week. It may win a cash prize for you.

"Van Raalte" and "Yolande" hand made lingerie.

In Emporium's hosiery department, women are offered a hosiery service only found in larger cities. This same thing is true of the accessory shop, which includes neckwear, handkerchiefs, flowers, jewelry and handbags. The glove department adheres to "absolutely desirable merchandise" in featuring the "Van Raalte" and "Aris" lines.

"The Corner of Youth"

One of the Emporium's newest departments is "The Corner of Youth," which has a reputation of being the most complete toiletries section south of Chicago. Here are stocked the finest French perfumes form Ciro, Guerlain, Caron and Lelong. This department features exclusively such treatment lines as "Elizabeth Arden" and "Charles of the Ritz," as well as fifteen other nationally known popular-priced lines.

Get New School Bus for Chandlerville

Chandlerville—Bert Weaver returned from Jacksonville Wednesday afternoon driving the new school bus to be used in transporting thirty-two pupils living east of Chandlerville to high school classes here. The bus has been delayed in arrival and all thirty-two pupils have, since Sept. 4th, been brought home by small car loads. The trip home in the new yellow bus was hailed as an event for cheers. In addition to the regular school bus service, the bus will transport the basket ball team to scheduled games.

Schoolmasters' Meeting

Schoolmasters of Cass county will hold their October meeting in Chandlerville on the evening of the tenth. Plans for the entertainment and program are in charge of Superintendent W. W. Ritchie and County Superintendent Walter E. Buck of Beardstown. Bids for the supper have been requested from the various church organizations. A group of twenty-five to thirty members of the organization is expected at this dinner.

Mrs. F. A. Lyons entertained the Bridge club at her home on Friday afternoon.

Rev. and Mrs. Fred Wilson were brief callers in Chandlerville Monday accompanied by their daughter, Miss Fredrika, who entered MacMurray Freshman class. Rev. and Mrs. Wilson made their home here in charge of the Christian church some years ago.

Ladies' Aid Activities

The Ladies' Aid of the Congregational church met on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. C. Morse. Mrs. H. A. Plunket and Mrs. C. Nelson were hostesses for the afternoon. Weekly quilting meetings at the church room will open early in October.

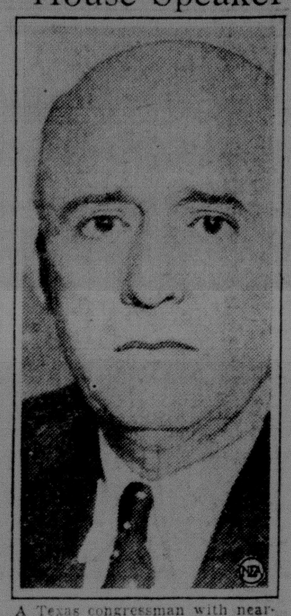
Club Services Lunch

Members of the C. S. C. under the chairmanship of Mrs. B. F. Carr, assisted by Mrs. Roy Sours, Mrs. E. O. Blair, Mrs. A. T. Lucas, Mrs. Charles Boensal, Mrs. W. W. Mullen, Mrs. H. A. Plunket, Mrs. Inez Amant and Mrs. C. Nelson served hot chili, coffee and pie on Sunday afternoon and evening at the Carr building. The afternoon and evening sales proved popular and cleared a well worth while sum for the treasury.

Injured By Auto

Mrs. Charles Norton was accidentally struck by an auto Saturday evening at the post office corner. She was found to be bruised by the fall and taken to her home, where no other complications have resulted. She has been in poor health for some time, but withstood this shock very well.

Touted as Next House Speaker



A Texas congressman with nearly 25 years' service in the national House of Representatives may be its next speaker. He is Sam Rayburn, shown here in a new picture. Washington observers say he will have strong administration backing to succeed the late Henry T. Rainey. Rayburn was co-author of the drastic stock market regulation bill.

Pleasant Hill

Thirty-five members and friends of the Woodson 500 club gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lonergan and enjoyed a basket dinner on the lawn. The afternoon was spent in playing cards and high scores were won by Mrs. Alma Walsh and Edward Riley, consolations going to Mrs. Rose O'Connell and Maurice Walsh.

A Young Carpenter

By Helen Welshimer

HE hewed the wood so carefully
With end to even end;
Now these would be door-stoops, he thought,
Where one could greet a friend.

THESE timbers were more gallant, so
He'd fashion them to form
Strong gates and walls and sloping roofs
To shut away the storm.

AND this, oh this small, funny piece
Would make a wooden ox,
A Roman soldier with a sword,
A set of building blocks.

THERE were no calls for two crossed beams,
And so he never knew
Until he had become a man
That wood makes crosses, too!

LONG-HIDDEN LINDBERGH RANSOM MONEY FOUND

Spread out on the table for examination and checking by police and federal officials is $13,750 in bills, identified as part of the $50,000 thrown over a cemetery wall in the Bronx by Dr. John F. Condon, in a vain attempt to ransom Col. Charles Lindbergh's kidnaped son in 1932. The police captain is shown with the square tin can in which the money had been buried in the dirt floor of the garage where Bernard Richard Hauptmann, arrested as the kidnaping suspect, kept his car.

Democratic Rally at Carlinville Oct. 7th

The fairgrounds at Carlinville will be the scene of a big Democratic rally and fishfry Sunday, Oct. 7, according to Sheriff Frank Fries of Carlinville, who has been made general chairman of the rally by the Macoupin County Central committe which is sponsoring the rally.

Democrats from Macoupin and nine surrounding counties will gather for the event which will last all day.

Speakers that have been listed to appear at the rally are: Michael Igoe, Democratic candidate for congress at large; Judge Norman Jones, supreme court judge; John Stelle, Democratic candidate for state treasurer; State Democratic Central Committee Chairman Bruce A. Campbell, and a large number of state and county candidates.

State's Attorney Michael Seyfiert of Carlinville will have charge of the speakers program, while Coroner James McBrien of Staunton will have charge of the reception committee and John F. Novak Jr. of Carlinville will have charge of the entertainment.

Chairman Fries said this week that several thousand Democrats are expected at the event and that invitations are being extended to Democrats in the following counties: Morgan, Sangamon, Christian, Montgomery, Bond, Madison, Jersey, Greene and Scott.

One Killed, 3 Hurt in Truck-Car Crash on Jersey Co. Road

Jerseyville.—One man was killed and three others injured Friday afternoon when a car and truck collided on U. S. Route 67 south of Jerseyville near Grafton.

Firmin Worthy, 60, of Alton, a former Jacksonville man, was fatally injured and died in an ambulance on the way to St. Joseph's hospital in Alton. He suffered a fracture of the skull and internal injuries. Worthy was driving a new Chevrolet truck. The accident occurred about 2:30 o'clock.

The car which figured in the collision was driven by Russel House, 24, of Jerseyville. House sustained a fracture of the right leg and cuts about the face and shoulders. Riding with him were Clarence Cox, 24, and Harry Herring, 21, both of Jerseyville. Cox had his collarbone broken and sustained cuts and bruises. Herring was cut and bruised.

According to the story by House, he had purchased the car, a 1927 Buick sedan, Thursday. He left Jerseyville Friday afternoon to go to Alton just for a ride. With him were Cox and David Woolsey. When the trio reached the filling station at Newbern, Woolsey left the car and Herring, who was tending the station, joined the others to go to Alton.

House claims he saw a truck coming on the wrong side of the road. He clamped on the brakes, but they were unbalanced. His car skidded, and the two machines came together with such force that both engines were driven back under the front seats.

Worthy was accompanied on the truck by Robert Davis of Alton. Both men were thrown out, but Davis struck the dirt shoulder and was unhurt. Worthy struck the pavement, fracturing his skull. An ambulance in charge of Captain M. H. Birrem of the CCC camp at Grafton started for the hospital with worthy, but he died en route.

Worthy was born at Elsah in Jersey county, but has resided in Alton the past thirty years. He leaves a wife and three daughters.

Jerseyville Women Hear State Leader

Jerseyville.—Mrs. Pauline Rinaker of Carlinville, State President of the American Legion Auxiliary in Illinois, and prominent member of the Woman's Club of Carlinville, was principal speaker Thursday at the one o'clock luncheon sponsored by the Jerseyville Woman's Club. This was the first meeting of the 1934-35 season for the General Club of the organization and was held at the Presbyterian Church here with eighty-six guests in attendance.

Mrs. Rinaker spoke on "Americanism" and under this topic she outlined the plans of the State American Legion and Auxiliary and gave a resume of the ideas these groups held on preparedness. She also gave a splendid discussion on present economic problems in this country. This was Mrs. Rinaker's second visit to the Jerseyville club as a speaker, she having appeared on one of the programs last year.

Mrs. R. Leo Smith, President of the Jerseyville Club, presided at the program. Following the luncheon the assembly joined in giving the Pledge to the Flag and sang "America" with Mrs. F. S. Snedeker as accompanist.

During the afternoon representatives from the various units of the Woman's Club gave an outline of the winter's programs. Mrs. G. R. Schwarz from the Music Department spoke on the organization of the Civic Chorale Club under the direction of Adolph Muhlmann of Chicago; Mrs. W. A. Leigh, Chairman of the Community Service group, told of the work planned for relief projects; and Mrs. Fred Howell outlined the programs planned for the Educational Unit and Mrs. H. R. Gledhill told of the work of the Household Science Department.

Mixed Chorus Will Replace Glee Clubs

Men's and Women's Glee clubs will be replaced this season at Illinois College by a mixed chorus, which will be called the Illinois College Choral Club. This new plan has been announced recently and is meeting with great interest among the students.

Within the club will be the special musical features, soloists, a girls' trio and a men's double quartet. In addition to the numbers of mixed voices, both the men and women will prepare groups of selections.

At least two concerts will be given during the year, one in mid-winter and a second in the late spring season. The direction of the Choral Club will be in the capable hands of Mr. William Z. Fletcher, of the Illinois Conservatory of Music, who has been in charge of the Men's Glee Club since its organization six years ago. Mr. Hugh Beggs, also of the Conservatory will serve as accompanist, he too having been with the Men's Glee Club for several terms. Both of these men are well known at Illinois for their fine musical ability and both have had ample experience in the kind of work which they will be undertaking this year.

At an early date approximately fifty persons, the outstanding vocalists on the campus, will be chosen by individual tryouts with Mr. Fletcher, and weekly practices will start immediately thereafter. Announcement of the time and place for tryouts will be made next week.

LOCAL TIRE DEALER GUEST AT BANQUET

There's a good reason for the smile that graces the countenance of Fred German, well known Goodyear tire dealer of our city. He has just returned from Chicago, where he was one of many honored guests of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company at a Victory Dinner given to Goodyear dealers in this section of the United States whose sales of G-3 All Weather tires in July and August were up to the respective quotas assigned to them by the company. Meetings of this type were held in various areas over the country.

But Mr. Fred German has additional cause for feeling proud. His percentage over quota was higher than that of any other dealers in his grouping, and in recognition of this signal honor he will be presented with an attractive plaque by the company. This plaque is prized very highly by Mr. Fred German, who is proudly displaying it at his service station at 426-430 South Main street.

ROUTT STOPS TRINITY; J. H. S. COPS OPENER

Threatening Bloomington Team Throttled in Final Period as Routt Wins 12-7

Revealing a "double-center" formation, the Routt Rockets last night crossed up the Trinity high defense during the first half to score two touchdowns, and then throttled a threatening Trinity aerial attack in the third and fourth quarters to win a hard fought and thrilling football game on the Illinois College field before a large crowd by a 12-7 score.

Whether it was Coach Baptist's unusual formation that upset the Trinity defense was not stated by any of the players, but for one half, a 125 pound quarterback, Bill Buoy, cut off yards in big chunks to keep Trinity retreating goalward. Buoy was particularly effective during the first half, and when he failed "Skeets" Lawrence and "Major" Torricelli, along with Corbett, went into action on reverses and spinners to keep the Trinity defense continually alert.

Routt showed amazing power during the opening half when they went down the field with the aid of a single penalty to push over their first touchdown. Their powerhouse was still clicking in the second quarter when they slashed and pounded their way down the field for another touchdown. During the opening half they marked up the startling total of 12 first downs to three for their opponents.

But if the first half was Routt's, the second half was Trinity's, but not by as large a margin. Opening up with a dangerous aerial attack, including passes thrown from less than five yards behind the line of scrimmage, the Trinity eleven ran up one touchdown, a point after touchdown, and kept the ball in Routt territory, uncomfortably close to the goal line for the Rockets. They made seven first downs to five for the home team, but their air maneuvers threatened to break up a staunch but somewhat green Routt defense.

Double Center Baffling

The use of the double center system appeared to baffle the Trinity team. Using an end and a tackle on each side of the centers, and a guard in between the two centers, the Routt line was able to shift its balance of power from right to left without the usual shifting maneuvers. Trinity was inclined to overshift the threat of the double center, a fact which Joe Tapocik, who called signals in the huddle, was quick to realize.

Routt's first touchdown drive started on their own 36 yard line, where they put the ball after a neat runback of the kick-off. The Rockets attempted a couple plays, and then Lawrence dropped back to kick. While the ball was in the air, a Trinity man blocked a Routt player, and then held him, a violation of the code which gives the ball to the offended team at the spot of the foul.

From then on it was a constant hammering on the Trinity line, Routt ripping down the field to the 13 yard line. There the attack almost slipped, two plays yielding a fumble and a yard and a half gain. Lawrence ripped off nine yards on the next play however, putting the ball on the one yard line with four downs to go. Buoy pushed through center for a touchdown and the pass for added point was knocked down.

Trinity went into high gear, booting the ball into the death corner for 45 yards, the ball going down on Routt's 19 yard line. Lawrence went back, and after failing to find a receiver for a pass he intended to throw, the lithe halfback raced across and down the field, gaining four yards. Routt's next aerial thrust was intercepted by Trinity, and after Routt had them stopped on the 25 yard line, interference on a forward pass was ruled, and Trinity took the ball on the Routt 12 with first down.

Two plays netted two yards as the Routt defense met its first serious test. A long pass over the goal line failed to connect by feet, and a fourth down drop kick did not come close. Taking the ball on their own 20 yard line, Routt began a series of plays which carried them to the Trinity 29 yard line where the Bloomington team broke up the thrust by intercepting a pass. Trinity kicked out of trouble, the ball going out of bounds in midfield.

Get Second Touchdown

Three plays later, "Skeets" Lawrence lugged the ball across the goal line after sprints of 20, 5 and 25 yards for a touchdown, Routt's second and what proved to be winning touchdown. An attempted line plunge to convert failed. Lawrence clipped off five yards on his first thrust, picked up 20 more on his second effort, and then wheeled clear of the field to dash 25 yards for a touchdown, scoring without a hand being laid on him.

Just as quickly, however, Trinity struck back, bombing the Rockets with a series of passes which took them down the field to Routt's 34, where Buoy intercepted a heave to start the teams in the other direction. The half ended a few seconds later.

Trinity turned on their full strength in the third quarter, dropping passes right and left as they rushed down the field at the start to Routt's 14 yard line where the Rockets took the ball on downs. Trinity gained on the Rockets in the punting exchanges during this period, but they could find no holes in the Routt line, and their aerial thrusts were becoming too common to cause the Rocket defense to make many mistakes.

BEARDSTOWN WINS AT WHITE HALL

Punch Over Four Touchdowns to Win 26-6—Mickie Heaton Runs 85 Yards From Kick Off to Score White Hall Touchdown.

White Hall, Sept. 22.—(Special)—A ripping line attack that shattered White Hall's defense for three periods, brought Beardstown a victory here today in the opening game of their schedule, but little Mickie Heaton, former Manchester high athlete, won the plaudits of the crowd when he raced 85 yards from a kick-off for a touchdown in the second quarter.

Heaton, the smallest player on the field, caught the kick-off after Beardstown's second touchdown, on the right side of the field, raced across the field, and then streaked down the left sideline for a touchdown. White Hall did not come close to scoring during the remainder of the game.

Beardstown opened up in the first quarter with a drive that put Kay in position to run 30 yards for the opening touchdown. In the second quarter Beardstown worked the ball deep into White Hall territory, and then DeSollar banked his way through the line for the marker.

Again in the third quarter Beardstown went down the field and Dufflemeier sneaked off the line for a third touchdown. Winding up the scoring for the game, Mohon took a 30 yard pass and ran 15 yards to score standing up.

Beardstown made 14 first downs to three for White Hall. Mohon stood out in the Beardstown line, and DeSollar, who did the punting, averaged 40 yards for the afternoon, and had two punts which traveled 60 yards. The field was slightly muddy, but apparently did not interfere with the players.

Coach Noel Mosher used 22 players during the game, substituting his second string during the last quarter.

Lineup:

Beardstown	Pos.	White Hall
Mohon	LE	Scheir
Schultz	LT	Farnback
Perry	LG	Anderson
Hegener	C	Eglekraut
Jones	RG	Marshall
DeWitt	RT	Newton
Stevens	RE	Hudson

1934 All-Star Major League Baseball Team is Picked by Sports Writers of Country

By Alan Gould,
Associated Press Sports Editor

New York, Sept. 22—(AP)—The All-Star major league baseball cast has been shaken up so thoroughly by 1934 developments that only four of last year's stalwarts retain the positions they held last year in the Associated Press annual selections, based upon the opinions of the nation's outstanding baseball writers.

Conspicuously missing from this season's All-Star lineup, representing the pick of the American and National league talent, is Carl Owen Hubbell, who was an outstanding choice last year and rated the most valuable player of 1933. The screwball ace of the world champion Giants, despite the fact he was a hero of the All-Star game at the Polo Grounds last July, was not considered to have had a good enough season on the whole to dislodge Jerome (Dizzy) Dean, of the Cardinals, Vernon (Goffy) Gomez of the Yankees, and Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe of the Tigers from the 1934 pitching cast of the aces.

Hubbell ran a poor fourth in the balloting, getting only 21 votes among 69 cast in the Associated Press poll. Dean ran well ahead with 60, while Gomez collected 57 and Rowe 42.

Other stras of the 1933 galaxy who fared badly this year, for a variety of reasons, included Wally Berger of the Braves, Chuck Klein of the Cubs, Joe Cronin of the Senators and Jimmie Foxx of the Athletics.

Babe Ruth failed to get a single vote, even for sentimental reasons, for the first time since he rose to stardom.

The only holdovers are Charley Gehringer of the Tigers, Pie Traynor of the Pirates, Al Simmons of the White Sox and Bill Dickey of the Yankees.

Lou Gehrig, iron-slugger of the Yankees, easily beat out Foxx for the first base assignment with 54 votes. The pilot of the Giants, Bill Terry, grabbed second place with 19. Foxx received only two votes for first and four for third base.

Most popular man in the 1934 poll is Gehringer, king second-sacker of the Tigers, who received all but two of the 69 votes for his position. Frankie Frisch, manager of the Cardinals, got the consolation pair of ballots. The dynamic catcher-manager of Detroit, Mickey Cochrane, ran second in popularity with 61 votes.

Third base developed the closest contest. Traynor, manager of the Pirates, nosed out Frank (Pinky) Higgins of the Athletics, 19 to 16. Marvin Owen of the Tigers and Bill Werber of the Red Sox, each of whom enjoyed big seasons, tied for third with 13.

American league players took seven places and National leaguers five. Only six teams placed men on the first team and of these the Yankees and Tigers each gained three positions while the Giants and Pirates grabbed two each.

The All-Star lineup, with votes cast and latest unofficial batting averages:

Position, player and club	Votes	B.A.
First, Gehrig, Yankees	54	.357
Second, Gehringer, Tigers	67	.352
Third, Traynor, Pirates	19	.313
Shortstop, Jackson, Giants	36	.278
Outfield, Mel Ott, Giants	50	.339
Outfield, P. Waner, Pirates	45	.360
Outfield, Simmons, W. S.	38	.342
Catcher, Cochrane, Tigers	61	.325
Catcher, Dickey, Yankees	20	.322

Pitchers	Votes	W	L
J. Dean, Cardinals	60	27	7

RAINBOW IS TIED WITH ENDEAVOUR

By Edward J. Neil

Newport, R. I. Sept. 22.—(AP)—One sensation, piled on another today as soundly beaten in the fourth race for the America's Cup, T. O. M. Sopwith, skipper of the British challenger Endeavour, protested the victory that pulled Harold S. Vanderbilt's defending Rainbow up on even terms with the Englishman at two victories each.

It was the first protest filed in an America's Cup contest since C. Oliver Iselin broke out a red flag in the series in 1895 between Defender and Lord Dunraven's British challenger Valkyrie 3rd, a protest that brought disqualification of the British boat and almost caused international complications.

The challenger's official protest was placed in the hands of the race committee.

Edmund Lang, the committee chairman, said an "international document" had been received, the nature of which would not be revealed until tomorrow.

If Sopwith's protest against Vanderbilt, known throughout American yachting as a stickler and quick protester himself, is upheld by the committee the challenging Endeavour will lead 3 to 1 in the best four out of seven series and will be within one victory of lifting the cup the United States has held since it was won from England in 1851.

Apparently Sopwith based his claim of foul on the allegation that Vanderbilt failed to meet his luff, a highly technical situation, shortly after the British sloop rounded the first mark of today's 30-mile race over a triangular course 23 seconds ahead of Rainbow. Racing in a swift breeze and boisterous sea, the defender gained on both the second and third legs in the 11 to 12 miles an hour wind to cross the finish line one minute, 15 seconds ahead of Endeavour, the second straight victory for Rainbow after losing the first two races.

While committee members after the race claimed not to have noticed any infraction of the rules, the question of a foul arose instantly among the experts aboard the coast guard cutter Argo, closest to the situation, shortly after the sloops started on the second leg, a broad reach with the wind blowing smartly from the east.

Endeavour was close on her course as she came up to the mark in the beat out from the starting line toward the Vineyard Sound lightship. Rainbow had failed to fetch the mark closely enough, and had to go wide making the turn.

When the American boat straightened out it was astern of the Endeavour, but the margin was slim. The rules of racing say that the overtaking boat has no rights at all on the road, and must make way always for the boat ahead, no matter where it wants to go.

Vanderbilt seemed to bear in on the Sopwith sloop which was all right, apparently, under the rules, unless Sopwith made a move in the American's direction. At about that time, Sopwith decided to luff, which means he tried to sail his boat closer to the wind, a move that turned him in Vanderbilt's direction. The boats then weren't many yards apart.

Instead of giving way to luff, as the rules call for inasmuch as Sopwith still was leading, Vanderbilt seemed to hold Rainbow straight on the course he had chosen and for a moment there was the danger of a collision. Sopwith had to fall off and slacken his sails. When he straightened away again, the American was off to a lead that never again was relinquished.

The experts aboard the Argo let out a concerted roar and immediately looked for Endeavour to break out with a protest flag. It was not, however until the sloops were tearing for the finish line, over an hour later that the protest flag was discernable. The committee boat, Wilhelmina, immediately signalled that the protest had been received, and the arguments were ready to start.

The race itself was astonishing enough without the protest and completely upset the conclusions the experts have reached as to both craft on the basis of past performances.

In a fairly heavy breeze, the kind Endeavour likes best, Rainbow, supposedly only a light air sailor, beat the invader at her own game in startling fashion. Always in the race on the first leg, a beat, Rainbow picked up the 23-second deficit there and added a full minute's lead at the second mark, and tackedon 15 more seconds on the final broad reach to the finish line. Rainbow's elapsed time was 3:15:38, Endeavour's 3:16:53. The American's time was fairly close to the new record for a triangular course Endeavour set at 3:09:01 Tuesday.

PLEASANT HILL BEATS GREENE 11

Teams Evenly Matched Up to Fourth Quarter When Pleasant Hill Threatens All the Time—Opens Valley Season.

Pleasant Hill, Sept. 22.—(Special)—Pleasant Hill opened the Illinois Valley conference season here today with a 12 to 0 victory over Greenfield, pushing across touchdowns in the second and fourth quarters, and threatening continuously in the final period. Pleasant Hill, under its new coach, Bruno Bierman, held Greenfield without a first down, before a crowd estimated at 400 persons.

Ferguson, Pleasant Hill right half, raced 15 yards around the end for the first touchdown, after Greenfield had kept Pleasant Hill away from the goal line with a well placed kicking attack, Cummins doing the booting. Scranton, left half for the victors, scored the second touchdown on a drive through the line from the three yard line, after a drive down the field. Both attempts to score points after touchdown on line bucks failed.

Greenfield's stiff defense was a trial for the heavier Pleasant Hill team. Coach Hubbell's boys held the victors away from the goal line successfully most of the time, but got in trouble in the final period.

Ferguson was the outstanding ball carrier for Pleasant Hill, breaking loose several times for good gains, and once tearing off a 30 yard sprint before he was brought down.

CARROLLTON AND VIRDEN PLAY TIE

Virden Threatens in First Quarter, But Carrollton Drives Into Virden Territory in Final Half.

Carrollton, Sept. 22.—(Special)—Carrollton and Virden battled to a scoreless tie here this afternoon in opening their schedules for the year, Virden gaining an edge during the first quarter, but had a tough battle on their hands to keep Carrollton away from the goal line during the last half.

Pontero, who booted the opening kick-off for Carrollton, and then retired to the sidelines, came back in the game with 15 seconds left to go and attempted a field goal, but his effort failed. Carrollton had driven into Virden territory several times, and were on the Virden 15 yard line when the game ended.

Molitoris, Virden's ripping fullback, threw fear into Carrollton during the opening quarter when he began a series of line smashes that gained five and six yards at a clip. He was finally halted inside the Carrollton 30 yard line, and Virden did not get as close to the goal again. Carter, left tackle for Virden, was the outstanding player in the visitors' line.

Carrollton showed an evenly balanced team, with no stars in any of the positions. After taking the first charge off Virden, Carrollton settled down to some hard football, driving into the twenty yard zone several times. The second quarter was played between the thirty yard lines, and Carrollton got the edge during the third and fourth periods.

The line-ups:

Virden	Pos.	Carrollton

FOUR GOLFERS TO ENTER STATE MEET

Feitshans Player Leads Field in Qualifying For Finals of State High School Meet Here—Tennis Meet Called Off.

Four golfers qualified over the Nichols Park course here yesterday for the Illinois High School Athletic Association championship tournament to be held in Champaign next Saturday, and tennis players from this district were notified by Macomb officials that the district tennis tournament has been postponed until Monday because of the inclement weather.

John McCall, Feitshans high player, led a field of eleven entries over the 18 hole route, firing a 76 to win a place in the state meet. Russell Bond, of this city, placed second with a 79, and James Buckley, of this city and Ronsard Roland, of Springfield high, tied with 81's to be given a place in the finals.

Qualifying for the golf tournament was carried on yesterday in several cities, and the four low qualifiers from each district will gather at Peoria for the state finals.

John M. Hollowell, tennis coach at the high school, received word Saturday morning that the scheduled tennis tournament to name district champions and runners-up in singles and doubles, had been postponed until Monday. The courts at Macomb, where the tournament is to be held, were too soggy from recent rains to permit play.

ROWE WILL PITCH OPENING GAME

St. Louis, Sept. 22.—(AP)—Figuring that his Detroit Tigers are "in" in the American League pennant race, Manager Mickey Cochran said definitely today he would start Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe in the first game of the world series.

"That's easy—Rowe," fiery Mickey said when asked as to his selection. "I don't care who the other manager picks. It may be bad bridge, but it's good baseball to lead your ace and that's what I'm going to do.

"If the Giants win, they'll use Hubbell, won't they? If the Cardinals should nose the Giants out, they'll use Dizy Dean, won't they? That's sound judgment; so we'll use Rowe. Why, if we used any but our best against their best, we'd be in the position of conceding the game and the Tigers aren't conceding anybody anything."

Right now, Cochrane said, he figures Rowe, the veteran Alvin Crowder, and Tommy Bridges will be his three starters in the series. Maybe, he said, Auker will start one. Marberry, Fischer, Hogsett, Sorrell and Hamlin will be ready for relief rolls.

"I don't intend to start a left-hander against the Giants—if they win," he said.

WINS FIRST GAME

Storrs, Conn., Sept. 22.—(AP)—Playing the first intercollegiate football game in its history, American international college of Springfiled, Mass., today conquered Connecticut State, 7 to 0. It was State's first game under its new coach, J. Orleans Christian.

Crimsons Pound Out Ten Touchdowns to Win From Industry in Opener 65 to 0

Throwing every bit of man-power available into the game, Jacksonville high school's Crimsons romped off their own field with the first game of the season 65 to 0, defeating Industry and setting a new high scoring record for themselves. Every one of the Crimsons who knew the signals got a chance to play a part of the game, the second string performing through the second and fourth quarters.

Industry, lighter than the Crimsons by more than ten pounds to the man, and with only one veteran in its lineup, was no match for Jacksonville at any time. The Crimsons stepped out at the start of the game and rang up a touchdown, and continued scoring at a pace of two touchdowns a quarter until the final period when the second team, inspired by the glory the first team had whipped up the pace to three touchdowns.

Touchdowns came from points inside the 30 yard line however. Industry's hard tackling little fellows pulling down the Crimson ball carriers after they had plowed through the first line of defense. Stan Davis marked up the first two touchdowns to start the scoring, and from then on it seemed that once the Crimsons got inside the 30 yard line a touchdown was sure. Only once did Industry stop the local club, and that was when the second team was in the fray and was trying to make a bogged down aerial attack spring to life. That one time Industry checked J.H.S. on the 18 yard line, but a couple plays later the locals had a touchdown to make up for the failure to score.

S. Davis Scores First

Davis' first touchdown dash came before the game was four minutes old. The Crimsons rushed down the field after blocking a kick and recovering ed by a penalty. Industry's next attempt to kick out of trouble was blocked again, J.H.S. recovering the ball. A couple plays put the ball on the 18 yard line, and then Stanley Davis slipped off his left tackle, dodged a couple tacklers and trotted across the goal line.

Not once during the afternoon did Industry choose to kick-off, and so furiously were the Crimsons charging that they continually took the ball deep in Industry territory, either after Industry had attempted to punt, or after they had recovered fumbles. Davis' second touchdown was the result of Industry's inability to get the ball out in the middle of the field, the Crimson halfback racing 22 yards for his second marker on the same play he used to score his first touchdown.

Substitutes began coming in the game for Jacksonville during the first quarter, but they did not slow up. In fact they seemed to speed up with fresh men in the game, plowing down the field for another touchdown, this time with "Rabbit" Ranson lugging the ball across the line. Still more replacements came on the field, and with the second string carrying on, Dixon Benson crashed across the line for one touchdown, and Warren Breeding intercepted a pass to mark up another. The half ended with J.H.S. in front 32 to 0.

First Team Back In

Coach Frank Walker sent his first string into the game at the start of the second half, and from all appearances their instructions were to work on their aerial game. They failed to complete a single pass in more than a dozen efforts, but gained ground whenever they needed it on running plays. Chuck DeWitt used the old Statute of Liberty play for two long gains, one of 35 yards and the other about 20 yards, but each time he was hauled down before he could get across the goal line.

It wasn't until Ted Wainright went into action toward the close of the quarter that J.H.S. marked up a touchdown, the "Bonecrusher" whirling through the center of the line for a 23 yard sprint to the goal line, knocking off two tacklers and carrying a third with him to the final stripe. Wainright got the next one when Stan Davis tossed him a pass on a hide out play, the only pass the regulars completed while they were in the game.

The second string came on the field in a body and began picking up touchdowns. They opened up on their aerial attack again, Charles Davis firing one to Willis Frank which brought a touchdown. Charles Davis got loose next and scrammed over the goal line for a touchdown, and Ted Rammelkamp chalked up another on the Statue of Liberty play, after getting within eight yards of one and fumbling the ball. Industry recovered that fumble, but Rammelkamp made good for it when the Crimsons got the ball the next time, all of the Industry backs running away from the snap and letting it fall to the ground where Jacksonville recovered.

Jacksonville's main strength appeared to be in the line. Both first and second string lines were impregnable, Industry making only one first down, and that on a forward pass and a penalty. Their running plays were jammed up all along the line of scrimmage, and the longest gain they made during the game on a running play was five yards.

The Crimsons were alert all of the time, blocking the first two Industry punts, coming close to others, and several times smearing the passer before he could throw the ball. All up and down the line the boys played a bang up game.

Stan Davis was called upon to kick only three times during the game, but on each of the three kicks he turned in neat efforts, getting from 30 to 40 yards despite the fact he was kicking against the wind. The Varsity aerial attack refused to work, Shawen and Stan Davis both missing their marks by inches.

Considering that this was the first time a number of the players had been in a game of football, the team acquitted itself with considerable glory. Fumbles were few and none of them costly. Blocking was positive and tackling was good for this stage of the season.

Hal Schumacher, Giants' Star Pitcher Weakens in Overtime Game and Braves Win 3-2

Boston, Sept. 22.—Hal Schumacher, the Giants' leading pitcher, tired toward the end of an overtime struggle today and walked in a run to give the Braves a 3 to 2 triumph over the league leaders. The Boston victory, which evened the series at one all, cut New York's lead over St. Louis to 2½ games as the Cardinals were rained out at Cincinnati.

Schumacher and the veteran Flint Rhem fought it out on even terms in ten innings of nip and tuck baseball, played under dark skies with rain falling toward the finish, and them proved to have the better staying powers. He granted eleven hits against nine off Schumacher, but worked easily and gave the Giants only two scoring clusters.

Two were out in the eleventn when Schumacher weakened suddenly. Randy Moore, who had been doing the most consistent hitting for the Braves, singled cleanly to right. Bill Urbanski followed with a base hit and Pinky Whitney beat out an infield tap to load the bases. Schumacher worked the count on Mallon to three and two, then heaved one high and inside to end the game with a pass that forced Moore home.

The Giants scored first in the third inning on Johnny Vergez' double, Blondy Ryan's sacrifice and Schumacher's single. They tied it up with an eight inning run on a single by Joe Moore, Critz's sacrifice and Mel Ott's two bagger after the Braves had taken a 2-1 lead.

Boston scored in the fourth on singles by Buck Jorgan, Wally Berger and Randy Moore and collected a seventh inning tally when Urbanski singled, went to third on Whitney's hit and scored after Mallon's fly.

EXPECT CLOSE RACE FOR BATTING HONOR IN AMERICAN LOOP

New York.—(AP)—Prospects for a close race for the American League batting crown during the final week of the season looked bright today as the result of losses suffered by two of the three contenders during the past seven days. The National Leaguers, however, stood pat on their program of Paul Waner against the field as the Pittsburgh ace maintained a ten-point lead after yesterday's games.

In the junior circuit Lou Gehrig got only four hits and Charley Gehringer five during the past week, losing five points apiece while Heinie Manush kept his .355 mark steady by hitting ten times in 27 trips to the plate. As a result Gehrig's mark dropped to .357 and Gehringer slid into third place at .352.

Waner, with 12 hits in 34 times up, kept his .360 average in the senior circuit unchanged. His nearest rival, Bill Terry, registered a two point gain but was still far behind at .350.

Detroit Tigers Capture Twin Bill From Browns and Need Only Two Games to Cop Flag

INDIANS NOSEOUT WHITE SOX 9-8

Chicago, Sept. 22—(AP)—Spotted five runs in the first two innings, three of them on Hal Trosky's 34th homer, the Cleveland Indians nevertheless were forced to put on a four run eight inning rally today to turn back the White Sox, 9 to 8, in the first game of their series and hand the cellar Chicagoans their sixth straight defeat.

Aided by homers by Zeke Bonura and Marshall Maudlin, the former's his season's 27th, the Sox batted Oral Hildebrand out of the box and fought their way to a 7 to 5 lead in the seventh, only to have George Earnshaw fall in a relief role in the eighth. The Indians pounded him for five hits and four runs.

ROSEMONT WINS

Havre De Grace, Md., Sept. 22—(AP)—The Foxcatcher Farms, Rosemont outsider in the betting, won the $10,000 added Eastern Shore Handicap—six furlong sprint for two-year-olds here this afternoon. He paid $21.20 for $2 to win.

The Calumet Farm Stables' Nelli Flag ran second, paying $7.20 to place and George D. Widener's Go Quick finished third, paying $9.90.

There were 14 of the country's best young horses in the race.

St. Louis, Sept. 22.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers thrashed the St. Louis Browns in both ends of a doubleheader today and moved still closer to the American League pennant. The scores were 8 to 3 and 15 to 1.

Mickey Cochrane's men now have a lead of six and one-half games over the New York Yankees and have only seven games to play. Should the Yanks win all their remaining games, the Tigers need only two more victories to clinch the pennant.

The Tigers have another double-bill with the Browns tomorrow and when it's over they may be mathematically "in."

In the opener, Tommy Bridges outpitched Hadley, Andrews and Walkup to record his 20th victory of the season. A home run by Jack Burns accounted for the Browns' three runs.

The Tigers went complete berserk in the seventh inning of the nightcap, scoring 11 runs. They started the assault against Dick Coffman and continued it against McAfee, who went to his aid. Darkness halted the slaughter after the seventh. Southpaw Carl Fischer had the situation under control throughout.

ROUGH WATER RACE

Washington, Sept. 22.—(AP)—In a rough water race which saw one speedboat overturned and another disabled with a gaping hole in her side, El Lagarto, a gold cup champion out of Lake George, N. Y., today won the first heat of the eighth annual president's cup race on the Potomac river here.

Twice winner of the trophy, El Lagarto, owned and driven by George Reis of Lake George, spurted out in front soon after the start.

REDS AT DECATUR

Decatur, Ill., Sept. 22.—(AP)—Charlie Dressen, who left the Decatur sandlots in 1919 to play with the Peoria and Moline clubs of the Three-Eye league, wil come home Monday as manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

His team will play an exhibition game with a team of central Illinois all-stars, and will be banqueted at the Elks club in the evening.

BUCCS BEAT CUBS IN DOUBLE BILL

Pittsburgh, Sept. 22.—(AP)—The Pirates smacked down the Cubs twice today, 2-1 and 11-7, for their fourth victory in two days.

As a result Pittsburgh moved into a tie with Boston for fourth place in the National League standings.

Jensen's single, sending two mates home in the sixth frame of the first contest, gave the verdict to young "Lefty" Birkofer over Hal Lee.

Tinning and Bush were victims of another Pirate sixth inning uprising that counted seven runs and clinched the second game. The Bucs close their home season tomorrow against Chicago.

COACH WILL RETIRE

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 22.—(AP)—Daniel Earl McGugin, the "grand old man of southern football" tonight announced his retirement as head football coach at Vanderbilt University at the end of the current season.

Coming to Vanderbilt fresh from graduation as a member of Michigan's "point-a-minute" teams, McGugin will round up 30 years of coaching this fall. He will have a hand in Vanderbilt's sports, however, retaining the position of athletic director, a job which he took over 12 years ago, but to which he has been unable to give much attention due to his football activities.

McGugin's teams at Vanderbilt have won 193 games, tied 19 and lost 52. There has been no announcement as to his successor.

WINS TITLE

Toronto, Sept. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Alexa Stirling Fraser of Ottawa won the Canadian women's open golf championship today with a 38-hole victory over Miss Ada Mackenzie of Toronto, the defending champion. The score was one up.

The two were all square at the end of 36 holes.

It was the first extra-hole match in the tournament since the finals were extended to 36 holes in 1920.

REGULARS WIN

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 22.—(AP)—Coach Elmer Layden put his Notre Dame "first" team against the fourth team today and the regulars won 13 to 0—but Layden said there would be new faces on his "first" line Monday.

A 55-yard dash off tackle by George Melinkovitch and a 20-yard pass form Andy Piney to Wayne Millner, who ran ten yards across the goal line, accounted for the score.

ROUTT BEATS TRINITY 13 TO 7

Routt made a serious error in the period when they attempted to make a first downs and were held on their own 39 yard line, turning the ball over to Trinity. The Bloomington lads again went to the air, and after two passes failed, they completed a shot which put the ball down on Routt's 16 yard line, during the early part of the fourth quarter.

Trinity Gets One

A quick pass over the line made a first down on the Routt four yard line. Cavallo whirled into the line for 2 yards, and Capodice banged into the same spot for the touchdown, going over the line with a heap of his own and Routt players hanging on. He also dashed through the line for the added point.

Put on the spot where a touchdown for their opponents meant a victory, Routt rallied gloriously to take the following kick off down the field on a series of line plays to the Trinity 13 yard line, where Buoy, after making a slight gain on a line thrust, lost the ball on a fumble. Capodice caught the ball before it hit the ground and dashed madly down the side line 25 yards before he was hauled down by Carl Weidlocher and Lawrence.

Again Trinity put on a burst of speed, driving through Routt on line plays and end runs, until they had pulled in the Routt defense enough to make passes work. They shot a pass which brought a first down on the Routt 35 yard line, and then went back to the ground work, with Cavallo racing to the 17 yard line.

With 34 seconds to play, Trinity tried two passes, neither of which connected as virtually the entire Routt line and backfield rushed back to protect the goal line. A fumble cost Trinity another down, and a fourth down pass was knocked down by Buoy. Routt had the ball on their own 19 yard line when the gun ended the game.

SAMUEL FOLEY CLAIMS HE HAS AIRTIGHT CASE

have been with us last week as we surely had a grand time. I (hope) everything is going well with you. As (for) me things are not going so good, O' (me) O' my. (Signed) Bruno."

With interest shown in this development by federal agents, it was learned that Paullin may be brought east to confront Hauptmann.

District Attorney Foley, however, paid little note of the convict's story, "It's a bust," he said.

In Trenton, Major Charles H. Schoeffel, Assistant Superintendent of the Jersey police, said the code message was "never produced here and the information given to us was that it was unsigned."

Discussing the Paullin story, Warden Thomas said the incident might be attributed to an "over-worked" imagination were it not for the corroboration of his daughter.

Paullin said he identified photographs of Hauptmann as the writer of the letters.

As the investigation was rushed in an effort to apprehend any possible accomplices, including a mysterious woman who has figured in the case from the start, police disclosed that Hauptmann had tried in vain to gain entrance to the safety deposit box of Isadore Fisch, a friend of Hauptmann who went to Germany two years ago and died there.

Hauptmann said he found the $13,750 in ransom bills discovered in his garage, and also the bills he passed, in belongings of Fisch left at his home.

Police also disclosed that Fisch paid for his passage to Germany with some gold certificates. The ransom bills were gold certificates.

The safety deposit box incident was told to police by Louis Blitzer, an attorney retained by Fisch's relatives to clear up his estate shortly after he died suddenly.

Blitzer said Hauptmann came to him, asked for permission to look into the box and was denied such.

While Foley termed Fisch only a "friend" of Hauptmann as far as he was concerned, Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" who as intermediary paid over the ransom, urged officials to order Fisch's body exhumed and an autopsy performed to determine if his was a violent death.

Fisch obtained his passport for the German trip on May 1, 1932—the day the Lindbergh baby's body was found in the Sourland mountain woods a few miles from the Hopewell home.

"Jafsie told of "another man and a woman" who accompanied Fisch to Germany.

The "other man" was established as Henry Uhlig, a friend. Both Uhlig and Fisch were in the fur business.

Uhlig was detained for questioning last night, Foley disclosed, and released after saying he would stay nearby to give his co-operation whenever wanted.

As with Fisch, Foley said as far as he knew, Uhlig was only a friend of Hauptmann and indicated he might not be further interested in him.

Federal agents, however, indicated they were not through by any means with the Fisch angle of the investigation, pursuing it both in this country and abroad.

Although the investigators have refrained from publicly linking the Fisch passage of gold certificates with the ransom bills, it was known that several months ago agents were working on a clue that some of the ransom money used in paying for someone's passage to Germany.

It was learned that at the time it was discovered that a passage to Germany was paid for with ransom bills, a deposit of almost $3,000 in ransom bills was located in a New York bank. Further, the deposit slip and the signature on the passage reservation were compared for similarity.

In announcing the arrival of Colonel Lindbergh next week, and after making the statement that his extortion case was complete, Foley said every note received in the case "including the one left on the window sill" had been identified by experts as of Hauptmann's writing.

This was borne out in a letter to Schwarzkopf by Albert S. Osborn, noted handwriting expert retained frequently by Scotland Yard.

Foley was asked whether he thought Hauptmann would break down and make a confession of the crime.

"Not for the present," he answered.

The charges of extortion against Hauptmann will be laid before the grand jury Monday, Foley said, but the hearing would be delayed until the arrival of Lindbergh from the west coast.

It was clearly evident that the authorities were searching intensely for accomplices. Federal agents were understood to be operating in Westchester county in quest of a possible male suspect. One report said this suspect had visited the Hauptmann garage where ransom bills were cached.

Acting Chief Inspector John J. Sullivan, of the New York police, sent squads into the Bronx throughout the day. But, if there were any arrests, none was announced.

Foley disclosed one woman had been questioned. Mrs. Max Hinkel. He said, however, her interrogation was not significant. He would not say what clue led to her being examined.

The woman angle was regarded as of paramount importance.

A woman aided in directing "Jafsie" to the spot in St. Raymond's cemetery in the Bronx where the physician paid the ransom.

The woman sought, the mysterious woman said to be a blonde, stood on the corner of Whittemore avenue as "Jafsie" walked down the dark road to the cemetery. He looked for a street market to identify the place.

Out of the shadows, a woman approached. She said:

"This is Whittemore avenue." And as the physician walked down the hedge and handed over the money to the man known only as "John," the woman disappeared.

Investigators were seeking the answers to these questions:

Was this the woman who stood beneath the nursery window?

Was this the woman who went to Germany with Fisch and "the other man?"

Was this the woman seen at dance halls and beer gardens frequently in the company of Hauptmann?

Today, from Los Angeles, there was word that federal agents there had supplied information on an accomplice.

The agents on the west coast gave information purporting to show Hauptmann visited Los Angeles in 1931 in company of a man described as his "closest friend"—another link to support "Jafsie's" account of the "other man" in the case.

The investigation has also included Hauptmann's operations in Wall Street, bringing the disclosure that the illegally-entered alien carried an account with the well known brokerage house of Stelner, Rouse & Company.

Hauptmann's account was in the Yorkville branch of the company, in the German quarter of Manhattan island.

There was a report that the account amounted to $25,000.

District Attorney Foley said he believed this was true but was waiting for an audit of the account before saying so for a certainty.

Hauptmann frequently told neighbors and friends he played the market and admitted his operations in the police lineup questioning.

TEXTILE STRIKE HAS ENDED

The entire program may be made effective by the president, under authority already vested in him, without the necessity of an agreement by either capital or labor. He is empowered to promulgate code changes and to appoint boards such as that proposed.

Up to the time of labor's decision the mill owners today still withheld any expression of outright approval or rejection. They proceeded with plans for opening many mills Monday, even before hearing of the answer formulated at strike headquarters.

Union leaders were frankly elated over most features of the plan and of the board report. The removal of all labor disputes from the jurisdiction of NRA and their sworn enemy Hugh S. Johnson, was especially pleasing to them.

Although the board's settlement plan will not put into effect Monday all of the demands on which the strike was predicated, they regarded it as holding tremendous advances for labor, and a promise that ultimately those demands would be met.

The union asked: Industry-wide recognition; a 30-hour week at the same total wage now paid for 40; a new determination of differentials between the wages of skilled workers and the code minimum and elimination of the stretchout.

CHARLEY MAKLEY ATTEMPTS BREAK PAL IS WOUNDED

written more than two years ago by Bruno Hauptmann, the German alien held in New York as a suspect in the famous Lindbergh kidnaping.

His story was broken off in the middle. The alarm galvanized the penitentiary's emergency riot squad into action.

Eight guards, armed with rifles, rushed toward the "death house," whence the alarm had come. Within a minute, the word was flashed back to the warden's office. "Makley and Pierpont have been shot."

They had tried to break down a steel door at the end of the cage outside the "death house" after overpowering a guard and taking the key to their cell from him.

Flourishing pistols, later found to have been fashioned of soap, they had released nine other occupants of "death row," including Clark, who drew a sentence of life imprisonment for his part in the Sarber killing.

Deputy Warden J. C. Woodward told the story of the break:

"Two guards were in the death house when the attempted break was made. O. E. Slagle was inside the cage within which are the death cells.

"A guard, C. W. Pfarr, was seated on a table outside the cage. A guard, J. T. Jones, was in a little room separating the death house from the L cell block.

"Slagle was in the cage putting a meal into Pierpont's cell. Pierpont told him he did not feel good and wanted some salts.

"As the guard turned away from the cell door, Pierpont hit him with his fist and said, 'give me that key.'

"Slagle refused and Pierpont struck him again and took the key from him. He then produced his own gun made of soap and marched down the cage and unlocked Russell Clark's cell door.

"They then opened all the cells and turned loose all eight men in the death house.

"Makley had a small soap automatic while Pierpont had a soap revolver.

"These desperate convicts then backed the two guards toward the steel door behind which Jones was fortified.

"They had to get past Jones' fortification before they could reach the open cell block. They broke a big table into pieces and tried to smash their way into Jones.

"They were using Pfarr as a shield against Jones' rifle.

"Jones, who has nothing more than a peek-hole through the steel door, quickly sensed the trouble and sounded a general alarm.

"The riot squad, always held ready in the main guard room, rushed to the L block where they found Pierpont and Makley leading an assault upon the door.

"The riot squad lined up, the door was flung open and, as Pierpont and Makley poked their false weapons toward the guards, the guards opened fire.

"Pierpont and Makley dropped instantly before the first volley and one guard (Harold Wetston) was wounded in the hand as he attempted to get into the death house."

None of the other prisoners was injured. Order was restored quickly. Guards were thrown around the outside walls and additional guards were called to duty within the walls to prevent possible outside help getting to the men.

Pierpont, in the hospital, appeared unworried by his wounds, said Dr. E. E. Smith, Franklin county coroner.

"I found him conscious," Dr. Smith said. "He didn't seem much worried.

"I examined his forehead injury and he said, 'oh hell. That's all right. The bullet isn't in my head. It's only a glancing blow.'

"I felt his leg. 'Can you feel that?' I asked.

"I can feel you rubbing it but not much,' he told me.

Dr. Smith said Makley had one bullet that entered the right side and took a downward course coming out on the left. Another bullet still was in his body the coroner said.

Pierpont's most dangerous wound, he said, was from a bullet that entered his body just below the spine. He said the wound would not prove fatal, however, unless peritonitis set in or a more thorough examination should determine that the bullet severed an artery.

Jersey authorities and Colonel Lindbergh. He declared he might have been successful if the baby had been alive at the time and providing he had received what he believed proper co-operation.

"I did the best thing I could without wanting to see Hauptmann caught. But they didn't take much stock in what told them," he stated.

Paullin said the method of writing in code had been proposed by Hauptmann when Paullin was associated with him in New Jersey—in New Brunswick and Perth Amboy where Hauptmann lived.

GEN. BUTLER IS SPEAKER AT BEARDSTOWN

Delivers Address at V. F. W. Meeting—VanZandt is Guest

Beardstown, Ill., Sept. 22.—A military salute of heavy guns, a band and parade of Veterans of the Foreign Wars and their friends and adherents, and a flag decked down town district welcomed Major General Smedley D. Butler and Commander Van Zandt, guest speakers of Beardstown's Veterans of Foreign Wars Saturday.

After a luncheon at 11:30 a. m. at the Park hotel the speakers and the heads of the local Guthrie Pierce Post took their places on a stand in the park.

E. R. Lewis, head of the Beardstown post, introduced the guests, and Mayor F. M. Condit welcomed them to Beardstown.

Due to rainy conditions and the necessity of General Butler being in Chicago Saturday evening the speeches were cut short to an address by Major General Butler.

He called upon the veterans to join themselves together politically to secure adequate veterans' payment and care. He amplified his statement already made over the radio and through many well known newspapers and magazines that "War is a Racket."

Statistics to prove his statement were given which caused admiring applause and comment from the large crowd which had assembled to hear him.

As a speaker Smedley Butler ranged from the drolly funny to th earnestness of the cause he is fighting for, "War only for Defense" and "Adequate Pay to the Veteran Who Incurred the Hazards of the World War."

Gen. Butler made a popular hit when he told of Lincoln, on whom Beardstown has a claim, and his policy toward the veterans of the Civil War receiving proper and decent care and recognition of their service to the nation.

It was with regret that the crowd saw the distinguished visitor leave due to other speaking engagements in Chicago.

Many citizens of Beardstown interested in the veterans were seated on the speaker's platform. Chief among them was a representative of the local G. A. R.

News Notes.

Miss Bernice Mearsch, who is a student at Macomb Teachers' college, is spending the week end here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Mearsch, 1406 Jefferson street. Miss Mearsch is specializing in English, history and French.

The Future Farmers of America, a club sponsored by B. W. Smith of the local high school, will carry out its work for 1934-35 under the following newly elected officers:

President—George Dunn.
Vice-president—Edgar Green.
Treasurer—Ralph Buck.
Advisor—Robert Jones.

All the officers for this year are students who come from nearby farm districts and have had experience in actual farming work.

The working force of Kline's store and Montgomery Ward's store motored to Browning Friday evening to enjoy a fish supper served by the Ladies' Aid of the Central Christian church of Browning.

The following Beardstown persons were present: Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Gleason, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Myatt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harmon, Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Herron, Miss Nellie Bates, Miss Hazel Cobbs, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Slusser, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mitchell and son, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Williams and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Holmes, Mrs. Lulu Thomas, Miss Genevieve Thomas, Mrs. Miner Morrow, Mr. Clarence Wagoner and Mr. Bill Martin.

Miss Dorothy Meyer returned home Friday after a short visit with Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Meyer and family of Browning.

Arthur Harris and Dorothy Brederer of Quincy were in Beardstown today to play as guest musicians for the Beardstown high school band concert Friday night at the high school auditorium. Both young people are national contests winners in cornet and piano respectively.

Arthur Schwuchow of Hobart, Indiana, where he is assistant band instructor, was in town Friday to play as guest musician for the band concert Friday night. Mr. Schwuchow's specialty is the clarinet on which he has won national honors.

Mrs. George Sawyer and Mrs. Sena Hagerstrom of town were callers in Springfield Friday to visit Miss Ellen Green.

Sigma Pi Launches Ninety-Second Year

Sigma Pi society of Illinois College launched its ninety-second year of activities Friday night with a largely attended meeting. More than sixty-five members and guests enjoyed the program and smoker. The president, William Fay, was in charge.

After the formal program Thomas O'Kane of Cairo and James Conlee of Jacksonville were received into membership, having been pledged last spring.

The first part of the meeting took place at the society hall on the campus, the society then adjourning to the Blue room of the Peacock Inn where the smoker was held.

Prof. George Adams served as toastmaster. There were short talks by a number of the alumni.

Emporium Is "Symbol of an Evolution"

Success of East State Street Store Reflects Consumer Demand for "Absolutely Desirable Fashion Merchandise" at Moderate Prices.

There has been an "Emporium" in Jacksonville for many, many years, but the growth of this fine store under the guiding genius of Edward M. Goldstein, its owner for the past fifteen years, is a modern version of the famous story of Alladin and his lamp. The metamorphosis which transformed an old fashioned edifice into one equipped to feature and sell fashion merchandise exclusively, is deserving of genuine and hearty applause.

From the inception of this newer Emporium, Mr. Goldstein has stressed the fact that fashion is the great vital spark of community life. The main factor in this fast developed fashion store center around the fact that it has always tried to illuminate the customer's demand for "absolutely desirable fashion merchandise" at moderate prices.

What Emporium does, says and sells is always closely watched by every fashion-conscious woman in this community, for it is through this store that really a "little bit of New York and Paris" has been brought to the heart of Jacksonville. The spreading influence of that truth to the extent of its achievement and attainments has lifted the standards of women's fashions for Central Illinois.

The charming and uncrowded windows, highly creative of expectation, like the advertising, must be and are a symbol to the public of the store and its stocks. Each window is a convincing picture of desirable merchandise, which must appeal to the sophisticated sense of the modern public.

From the viewpoint of location, looking to the future, there is perhaps no store in the city more favored to become "a little bit of New York and Paris" in the heart of Jacksonville. Just a few steps off the square, the little jewel-like building stands out snow-white on East State street, a fashion island of elegance and distinction in which the woman of Jacksonville may shop to her heart's cantent.

Talking with Mr. Goldstein, one senses the earnestness of the platform of the Emporum—"absolutely desirable merchandise" which in its expression is the new, unhackneyed formula and promise of quality and value, in whatever merchandise and at whatever fair price . . . they intend to have in the store always only merchandise they are proud to stand back of. . . . they intend to have all this merchandise in good taste, at moderate prices. . . . they intend to keep the Emporium a fashion store in which people will like to shop, in which they will be comfortable and at home while shopping. . . . Every buyer is inspired and encouraged to select only desirable merchandise of which they, the store and the customers may be proud. That is why the selling staff at the Emporium is so confident of the store and of its stocks.

Emporium's Second Floor

On the Emporium second floor, women will find coats, dresses and millinery for every occasion—all quality merchandise at fair prices to suit everyone's purse. Nationally known garments, as well as adaptations from Parisian designers, may be had.

Emporium's Street Floor

On the street floor, in the shoe department the store features all nationally known quality footwear, such as "Paris Fashions," "Connie Creations," "Jacqueline Modes," "Trufit" and "Brentmoors." The Emporium features its shoe department as a shoe service for women exclusively.

In the corsetry department, three of the best corset lines are available—"Gossard," "Formfit," and "Vassarette." Every garment is sold with the purpose of doing something for its purchaser. This department is in charge of graduate corsetierres.

The lingerie department lives up to a reputation for breath-taking beauty in intimate garments, featuring such nationally known merchandise as

Bread Energy For Vitality

These few simple words carry one of the greatest messages in the baking industry that has ever been attempted. It is a national appeal by bakers in this country to show how really important bread is in the daily diet, and to prove to the housewife that bread should be considered among the first great foods. Radio programs have been sponsored by a large milling firm and much advertising has been done directly by all bakers stressing the value of good bread. Out of the campaign the slogan "Bread Energy for Vitality" was selected for the bakers appeal to the American public to eat more bread.

We, as one of the Jacksonville community area Bakeries, are behind this program and through our respective distributing grocers and restaurants stress the importance of KLEEN-MAID BREADS which in turn contain Bread Energy for Vitality.

It's Autumn..
and
JACKSONVILLE
Is Ready
To Serve You!

Now that the Fall season is here, your thoughts will turn to things you need or have planned buying this autumn. Things to wear—clothing, shoes, hats and accessories, furnishings for your home—furniture, rugs, a radio, refrigerator, stove, washer or any one of hundreds of little and big articles for use in the home, repairs for your house—whether you want to rebuild or remodel, a fine new car or a dandy used one.

In Jacksonville you will find variety, economy and service in shopping. The stores are inviting and cooperative. They have complete Fall lines on display, and they have never looked better nor been more moderately priced. Whether you buy a hat, a pair of shoes, a suit, a dress or a coat, you'll learn that savings are genuine in Jacksonville's apparel shops and stores. Furniture stores and furnishings departments are stocked full of the newest items for brightening up your home, and the prices are astonishingly low. All the newest and best models of motor cars are on show in Jacksonville, too, and dealers are ready to demonstrate their cars.

And so it looks like a gala season for the buyer . . . in Jacksonville at least . . . where shopping and buying is a pleasure, and every dollar spent does a full share of creating a more prosperous community.

GRAIN PRICES ARE STRONGER

By John P. Boughan
Associated Press Market Editor

Chicago, Sept. 22.—(AP)—An undertone of strength pervaded the Chicago grain market today, and prices averaged somewhat higher, but finally eased back on account of profit-taking sales.

A decided recovery in wheat quotations at Liverpool, together with blizzard reports from Canada indicating further delays to the Canadian crop movement, had much to do with imparting comparative firmness to Chicago prices. Liberal purchases of cash wheat for shipment out of Chicago, presumably to eastern mills, served also as a sustaining factor.

Wheat closed steady, ¼ lower to ¼ higher, compared with yesterday's finish, Dec. new 1.03¾-1.04, corn ¼ off to ¼ up, Dec. new 78-78¼, oats ¼-1 advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5 cents.

Contributing to the upward trend that the wheat market showed during most of the day was announcement that wheat production in 40 reporting countries this season is now estimated at 2,856,316,000 bushels, 9 percent under the total harvested by these countries in 1933.

Corn and oats were firmer than wheat, owing more or less to heavy frost in Iowa and to rains in Illinois and Indiana.

Provisions paralleled steadiness of the hog market and of cereals.

STOCK TRADING IS AT LOW EBB

By Frederick Gardner

New York, Sept. 22.—(AP)—While financial markets seemed to be animated by greater hope, the peace of recovery in stocks slowed down almost to a standstill at the week-end today.

Share trading ebbed as the rally tapered off.

Minor Gains were the rule. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 selected issues, at 71.2, up one-tenth of a point, was higher for the fifth consecutive session. Turnover decreased to 238,570 shares compared with 344,670 last Saturday.

Fractional losses in American Can, American Telephone, International Harvester, Anaconda Copper, Montgomery Ward and other issues of that calibre were balanced against small gains in J. I. Case, Allied Chemical, Schenley Distillers, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Consolidated Gas and New York Central. Rails and utilities were inclined toward firmness.

Transportation experts studied the formation of a central organization by the railroads in the belief that it would play an important role in forthcoming efforts to work out a solution for some pressing rail problems, including consolidations.

Automobile output statistics and accounts of slackening demand for cars, in conformity with seasonal trends, contrasted with reports of brisker consumer demand for lighter goods. Cram's reports estimated automobile output this week at 38,329 units, a decline of 4,631 from the preceding week and 9,320 below the total a year ago.

MANY NEW STUDENTS AT BROWN'S ATTEND WELCOME RECEPTION

Over one hundred students, guests, and faculty assembled at Brown's Jacksonville Business College Friday evening for the first social event on the school calendar in the nature of a welcome dance, with the new students as guests of honor. The customary green arm bands were used to identify the new students.

The welcome dance was planned under the very able direction of Floyd Craft. A general committee assisting Mr. Craft was Mayna Massey, Byron Snyder, Harold Strawn, Mark McGinnis, and Georgia Ann Greenleaf.

A dance program consisting of 18 numbers, including three novelty numbers—Flashlight, Blindfold, and Circle Dance—was played by Bruce Humble and his Dixie Ramblers.

In the desert country, many animals never drink water. Their need for moisture is suppplied by chemical action in their digestive tracts, which turns some of their starchy food into water.

CAROLINE by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

CHAPTER XLI

The next day she received another letter from Howard and she read it only because she felt she would be putting herself at a disadvantage if she were not to know of any new threats he might make.

This time he wrote that he had been mad to try to frighten her—but she must know he hadn't meant it. Had he ever harmed her? Wouldn't she see him just to say goodbye? He was leaving soon—going West again—probably never to return. If he had her forgiveness. . . .

Caroline folded up the letter. Its abjectness pained her. It was as though Howard were helplessly revealing his soul, and it was not fair to him to look upon it.

The following day she went to the employment manager at the factory and said she was quitting. It was one thing to stand up against Howard's threats—quite another to accept further generosity from him.

The manager asked her to stay until Saturday and she consented. And by Saturday she and Malcolm must perfect their mask or lose the chance to sell it to Mr. Purcell.

That night Caroline told Malcolm what she had done. "If we succeed," she explained, "it won't matter, and if we don't—why, I'll need a week or two to get moved."

Malcolm regarded her blankly. "What do you mean—get moved?"

"It will be the best time for me—while I'm waiting for that job at Purcells. And I must move. We're going to sell the house."

"As bad as that? But surely . . ."

"Father and I want to make a new start," Caroline broke in. "We have some debts that simply must be paid. Of course, we could sell Mother's portrait and stay on here for a while, but it wouldn't bring enough to clear us and carry the house too. A flat will be much better—not half the work and worry."

"I suppose so," Malcolm agreed, "but gosh, Caroline, it will be lonely around here." Suddenly his face brightened. "All the more reason why we've got to get a mask that Purcell can't turn down! We aren't licked yet. It's only Wednesday. Trouble with us is, we haven't been trying. Give me that lanolin. I'm going to work."

"Anyway let's put in oil of cloves, whatever we get," Caroline suggested. "My dentist uses it and if any woman should get some of our mask in her mouth it might as well taste good."

"Why not have different odors, so they can choose what they want?"

"That's a good idea. And if we can't make it a pure white let's have it sunburn—make it more exotic—a touch of iodin will do the trick."

"Nothing doing. Someone would be sure to call it the yellow peril. I'm all for toothpaste pink, myself."

Caroline laughed. "Reminds me of a girl I once knew who was going to write a play and the only thing that worried her was her curtain speech."

"Well, we're going to write this play. Mind handing me that beaker and the thermometer? I'm going to test this mixture for fluidity. I want it to liquefy on the skin at body heat."

"Why not on our wrists?"

"I want it hotter than that to begin with. Thanks."

They worked until midnight, then they went upstairs for coffee and sandwiches. Both were silently fighting secret doubts.

"Would you mind if I go down again for a little while?" Malcolm asked when he had drained his second cup of coffee.

"I hadn't any idea of quitting so early," Caroline exclaimed. Malcolm tried to talk her into calling it a day and leaving him alone in the "lab," but Caroline pooh-poohed the idea.

Another hour passed and they were still dissatisfied with the results of their labor. Malcolm forgot the time, but presently, when he chanced to look at Caroline, he saw that she was heavy-eyed with weariness.

"I'm a brute," he declared contritely. "You look all in. We'll quit this minute."

"Could you do any more tonight?" Caroline drove herself to ask.

"Not much—just add a solvent to this latest mixture and try it out."

"Then let's do it—finish it up," she urged. "I'm really not so terribly tired—just sleepy."

"You're tired out. But I was too blamed interested in this mess to notice. I would like to try it out, though." His voice was apologetically eager. "Caro"—he had never shortened her name before—"I think we've got it."

"Malcolm! Honestly! And you've been perfectly mum!" She was too excited to take note of what he had called her. "What is it Let me see!"

"Okay, in just a minute. I didn't tell you because—we've been disappointed too many times."

"What of that? This is a fifty-fifty proposition, isn't it? Just because I've been half asleep is no reason for thinking I can't take another bump—although it's very sweet of you."

"Instinct, I suppose," Malcolm grinned. "A fellow has to feel that way about a girl for his own good."

Caroline smiled at him, thinking, "It is nice to be protected—what a darling he is—I'll lose a great deal when he falls in love with some other girl."

Malcolm observed that she was staring at him with a strangely startled expression. "What's the matter?" he laughed. "Don't you know that men still like to think they're the stronger sex?"

Caroline smiled, rather faintly. "I was thinking of something very . . . very dreadful that might happen to me," she replied.

"Not any trouble you haven't told me about?" he pressed.

"Just a bridge I haven't come to. And we've enough worry for the present! Can we try the mask now?"

"Yes. And one thing I'm sure of, it couldn't hurt a baby's skin. I was wondering if you wouldn't like to have a facial?"

"Go ahead, wave your wand over me. I feel enough like a Cinderella."

"Well, if it can gild the lily it sure is something!" He drew up a chair to the light. "Sit here. Put your feet on that box and lean back. There, now close your eyes."

He was pushing the hair back from her face. His touch was light but in it Caroline felt that his emotions were deeply stirred. He rarely touched her—so obviously refraining from it that Caroline could not escape the conclusion that it was a risk for him to do it—the risk of crashing through the restraint imposed by her aloofness, upsetting, destroying, the tranquillity of their friendship.

But could they go on forever like this? She wished, on an impulse of fear, that he would lean down and kiss her. Perhaps, with that, she could hold him—never lose him. Instantly she was ashamed. He was too fine to rob like that—what was it her father had once said about Howard?—that he was unscrupulous enough to hope, even while he could offer her nothing, that she would never free herself in loving someone else. Caroline remembered the words with the consciousness that she had been guilty of the same wish about Malcolm. If she were to be truly noble, she told herself, she would break off with him completely—let him go, free.

"But I'm not noble," she thought fiercely, "I wouldn't know what to do without him."

He was spreading the soft creamy mask on her face, she was glad to have it covered, her eyes closed, lest she open them and let Malcolm see that in her mind she had broken down the barrier. For, in spite of her self-reproaches, she still wished that he would kiss her. It would be so much more of Howard rubbed out of her life to have another man's kiss on her lips, she thought.

"Fifteen minutes," Malcolm was saying, and his voice was queerly husky, "then we'll spray it with water, and—it's win or lose."

Caroline did not answer. She could not, the mask was drying on her skin, her face began to feel as though it had been caught in a vise.

Malcolm was searching around for the atomizer. He found it, filled it with warm water, and then Caroline felt him tucking a towel about her neck. It seemed ages before he pressed the rubber bulb—she could feel the fine spray on an uncovered lobe of her ear. Had they got it really — success, security, escape from poverty, hardships? Or was it just another failure?

She fairly held her breath as the mask began to soften and a delicate, pleasant tingling relieved the drawn feeling of her flesh.

Malcolm cried excitedly: "It's bubbling, Caro girl! You should see it! It's beautiful. Looks like somebody had knocked the top off a beer keg. Hold still! You'll have it all over you. How does it feel?"

"Gr . . . nd," Caroline sputtered. Her hand groped for the towel. "Wi . . . pe my m . . . outh."

"Be quiet, don't touch it. It's so fine now I could blow it away."

Presently he applied some bits of cotton to her eyelids, her lips, the edges of her hair. "Wait," he said, "until I get a mirror for you, and the magnifying glass."

Caroline sat up straight and opened her eyes. "I can't tell you how nice it feels," she said, putting her fingertips to her cheeks. They were like velvet to her touch.

Malcolm handed her a mirror. "I'd say you look as fresh as an apple blossom," he exclaimed. "But you're not a good subject—you're too lovely any old time. We've got to try it on someone else. Here's the magnifying glass. See if you can find a blemish with it."

Caroline tried. "I must confess that I can't," she said at last. "And I did yesterday—several. Oh Malcolm, it's marvelous!"

"Do you think we'd dare wake up Mrs. Stevenson and try it on her?"

"Why not? I'm sure we've got it. She'll forgive us when she sees what it does to her. But on second thought if we wait until daylight it will be a surer test."

"I'll be here at dawn. And now you get some sleep."

"I'm too excited. I wish we could celebrate."

"The Clover Club is open until three. Let's go and dance."

"But it's almost two now. By the time we were dressed it would be too late. We can have another cup of coffee, though, and talk about what we're going to do with all our money."

"I'm going to buy stock in Purcell's," Malcolm said decidedly. "This formula is worth a fortune. They won't pay us any part of what they'll make on it."

Caroline regarded him thoughtfully. "I think I'll take cash," she said, "if it is enough. I'd like to buy the Rutledge factory."

"But Caroline, this formula is going to make their mask just another cosmetic product!"

"And Henry Dunsworth will sell cheap, perhaps. If his factory is on the market, Malcolm, I want it. It can make money if it's properly managed. And there's always something new to promote."

Malcolm was silent for a moment, studying the problem her words presented. Then, "you might trade this formula to Dunsworth for a part ownership," he offered quietly.

"That's just like you," Caroline said with a catch in her throat. "You're thinking I won't get enough to buy him out. And you're sure, too, that you'd make more money with Purcell. That makes it a beautiful sacrifice. Thanks . . . a lot, but I don't want it that much, Malcolm."

"We might sell to Purcell for cash," Malcolm suggested. "I know how you feel about the factory. You'd need me to help you run it, too."

Caroline's face brightened with a quick enthusiasm. "Partners!" she exclaimed. "We'd be partners, Malcolm, Rutledge and Stuart! But I oughtn't to let you think of it. You'd lose all the money you'd make by taking shares in Purcell's."

"But think of what we could do with a factory! We'd fit up a lab in it and who knows, we might make a bigger discovery than this mask. If you say so, Caroline, I'll hit Purcell for a wad of cash, and then I guess you'll want to talk to Henry Dunsworth yourself, won't you?"

"Will I! But we're counting an awful lot of chickens, Malcolm. I ought to tell you to stay with Mr. Purcell, I know I ought, but I can't help feeling that the Rutledge factory belongs to me. And of course I couldn't manage it without you. It was the depression and . . . family extravagance, that licked father, and Mr. Dunsworth isn't a factory man at all. We could put it over—if only we can get the money!"

"We won't, not to buy outright," Malcolm admitted, "but we can get backing. I think, though, I'd better start the negotiations with Dunsworth. If he finds out how much we want the factory he might boost the price."

"Who will back us?"

"Someone who will be impressed by the fact we've had this mask to sell to Purcell."

Caroline was suddenly doubtful. "If we sell it," she said slowly.

Accomplishments At School For Deaf Are Reviewed By Cloud

In an address delivered to members of the Illinois Association for the Deaf in Chicago, recently, Dan S. Cloud, managing officer of the Illinois School for the Deaf, reviewed the accomplishments at the local school during the past few years.

Dr. Cloud spoke as follows "We have been passing thru very critical times, and the effects of the depression have had their influence upon the school, as they have had upon everything else. To meet these new situations the school has been undergoing a gradual change in organization. Reduced financial support—with an increasing population—has presented problems of management not heretofore experienced. By retaining that which we believe serves the deaf child better and discarding those things considered obsolete and of no help, we have been enabled to meet these new problems in a way to insure the continued efficiency of the work that has been done.

"You will recall that five years ago the State Department of Public Welfare established new and higher standards for teachers employed or to be employed in the school. All of these requirements have been met, and it is my opinion that the faculty of the Illinois School for the Deaf ranks with the best in the country.

"Psychologists from the Institute for Juvenile Research, Chicago, were invited to make a survey, the purpose of which was to secure as accurate a measure as possible of the intellectual ability and educational achievements of the children? A similiar survey was made by the institute a few years prior. From their report the following is extracted: 'The median scores for the deaf children in the 1931 survey are above those of the 1927 survey at every age except eighteen and nineteen. They are slightly below the norms for other deaf children below year fourteen. Above fourteen they exceed the norms of other deaf children. It seems that the children in the Illinois School for the Deaf are about the same in general intelligence as those in other deaf schools.'

Reports on School.

"I requested the state department of public instruction to pass upon the school as compared with the good public elementary schools of the state. Dr. Floyd T. Goodier, assistant State Superintendent of Public Instruction, in his report filed with the Honorable A. L. Bowen, director of the State Department of Public Welfare, said: 'In my opinion the school is well organized, well supervised and taught by a corps of efficient teachers. While I did not have the time to see much actual instruction, I did learn that the teachers are well prepared for their work and saw enough to convince me that the general spirit of the school is excellent.

"'As I visited the departments of art, printing, homemaking, carpentry, barbering and photography, it seemed to me the school was doing some remarkable work in preparing its students for worthwhile life activities.

"'Another outstanding feature of the school is the health program. The school is doing more for the health of its students than can be attempted in most public schools.

"'The course of study is good and is in a form so that it may be revised easily.

"'It is not hard to understand why your school ranks high among the schools of the deaf thruout the United States.'

"Our plans for next year carry us another step forward. In line with sound progressive educational standards, the pupils in the school are to be classified according to their individual abilities. The new plan, we believe, will insure maximum all around growth—socially, emotionally, physically, intellectually and morally. We believe it is sheer folly to try to make all pupils, regardless of intelligence, conform to the same standard of achievement.

School Grows.

"Since the fall of 1929 the school has rapidly grown in population. The records of the statistician of the Department of Public Welfare will show that during the fiscal year 1928-1929 the total enrollment was 456 and the per capita cost $1,075.55. The following tabulation shows what has been done during the present management.

Year.	Total Enrollment.	Per Capita Cost.
1929-1930	416	$970.85
1930-1931	495	855.29
1931-1932	573	717.56
1932-1933	625	697.53
1933-1934	659	Not available yet.

"It appears now that the enrollment for the 1934-1935 sesison will approximate 700.

"This record, I believe, will convince you that more and more parents have confidence in what the school is attempting to do educationally for their children and proves our contention that better educational facilities have been made available, while waste and extravagance have been eliminated.

"Life long association with the deaf and experience accumulated during the years I have been in the profession convince me that, primarily, schools for the deaf should emphasize more the vocational side of education. It is on this point I believe your association can do its greatest good. A demand for better vocational opportunities should be made. The capabilities of the deaf should be freely publicized and kept before the public.

Question Pupils.

"In 1932, the school, through the generous co-operation of the Institute for Juvenile Research, undertook the task of attempting to find out what its former pupils and graduates were doing occupationally during the ten year period prior to that date. Questionnaires were prepared and sent out to 340 graduates and former pupils. Replies were received from 125. The results were enlightening.

"From the boys, we learned that fourteen trades or useful occupations were acquired at school. The girls acquired five trades or useful occupations. At the time the survey was made the boys were engaged in forty-five different occupations, the girls in twenty. Only eight per cent of the boys were following the trades acquired while at school and sixteen per cent of the girls replied they were following the trades acquired at school.

"You remember the survey to determine possibilities of placement in public works and civil works for the deaf and hard of hearing which was made last spring. It was my privilege to co-operate in this work as downstate supervisor. The field workers contacted 889 men and women, of whom 371 attended a school for the deaf. 289 stated they had received their trade training in such a school. 503 stated they had had no trade training.

"Higher education for the deaf has been encouraged and financial assistance has been rendered to five girls and thirteen boys since the enactment of the new law creating the Board of Education for the Blind and the Deaf."

WAVERLY MAN MEETS DEATH IN ACCIDENT

Thomas Pulaska Dies After Automobile Strikes Him Near Home

Waverly, Sept. 22—(Special to the Journal)—Thomas Pulaska, 41, well known farmer residing east of here, was killed early this evening, when he was struck by an automobile. Pulaska is said to have walked into the car when he attempted to cross the hard road, in front of his home. The Pulaska home is situated on Route 104 five miles from Waverly.

Pulaska had been talking to his son James Edward, who had started to drive away from the the farm home, and was returning to his residence when the fatal accident occurred. The driver of the car, whose name was not immediately available, placed the injured man in his car and took him to Auburn, where he was given first aid treatment. He was in an unconscious condition and it was decided to remove him to Springfield hospital, but death occurred before the arrival at that institution. Both of the man's legs were broken and his jaw bone was fractured in addition to other injuries.

The decedent was born in Austria-Hungary, and came to the United States in 1905. He has been a resident of the Waverly community since 1905. He was married to Mary Dodd, who with one son, James Edward survives. He also leaves his mother, Mrs. Lena Pulaska of oRanoke, three brothers, Frank and Jake of Waverly and John of Naperville and one sister, Mrs. E. C. Reilly of Chicago.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

MILLER INFANT DIES SUDDENLY HERE LAST NIGHT

Bobby Gene Miller, fourteen months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Miller, 535 Hooker street, died suddenly at 8:30 o'clock last night, death being attributed to heart disease.

The infant became ill late Saturday and was taken to the office of Dr. David Reid, on West College Ave., but upon arrival there the child was found to be dead.

The remains were taken to the Reynolds Mortuary where a jury impanelled by Coroner E. O. Sample, found that death was due to organic heart disease with dilatation. The jurors were L. B. Turner, foreman; J. Cordell Moore, George Lukeman, Jr., Clarendon Smith, A. L. Yording and E. A. Olds.

Thomas McManus of Hopedale was among the callers in Jacksonville yesterday.

Arenzville visitors here Saturday included Orville McLain.

ANNOUNCE NEW LOAN OFFERS ON CORN HERE

Farmers Who Sealed 300,000 Bushels Can Get Ten Cents More

Morgan county farmers, who sealed 300,000 bushels of their 1933 corn for loans of 45 cents a bushel, can now get loans of 55 cents a bushel on farm-stored corn of either the 1933 or 1934 crops, according to the most recent official details which Farm Adviser I. E. Rarett has just received from the extension service of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

The loans are being made through the Commodity Credit Corporation as a means for conserving feed and seed supplies and promoting the orderly marketing of this season's crop.

Provisions of the new loan agreement are similar to those of the 1933 plan. The periods in which the new loans on 1934 or 1933 corn, not sealed under the previous program, may be negotiated will probably terminate on February 28, 1935.

Loans will be available to eligible producers at 4 per cent interest on the security of merchantable ear corn graded No. 4 or better, properly stored and warehoused according to the state warehouse regulations.

Forms for making the loans are now being prepared in Washington and will be distributed through local banks and the Farm Adviser's office.

An eligible producer may make application to his local bank after his corn has been sealed in accordance with state regulations. Banks will be permitted to make the loans and the Commodity Credit Corporation will purchase acceptable notes.

The new loan program supersedes the extension granted upon 1933 corn loans, since the borrowers may reseal corn on which the old loans are outstandnig and secure a new loan at the rate of 55 cents a bushel. Reinspection and resealing of all corn carried over will be necessary. The time limit for reinspection and resealing to shift from the old loans to the new has been set at October 15, 1934.

Under the new loan agreement the note of the producer may be called at option of the holder of the loan when the quoted price of corn exceeds 90 cents a bushel. The fixing of a call price was incorporated in the agreement as a safeguard against freezing the supply should a serious shortgae develop this winter.

MISS MANN NAMED CLASS SECRETARY

Miss Catherine Mann, of Kankakee, Ill., was chosen secretary of the Senior class of MacMurray College to fill the vacancy created when Miss Orilla Moe of Gilford, Conn., failed to return this fall.

The past experience of Miss Mann especially fits her to hold this position of responsibility. An English major and a secretarial minor, Miss Mann has been particularly active in the Tironian club, a departmental club for secretarial students. Last year she served as president and during her Sophomore year as editor of the Radio, the paper published by the secretarial department.

This year Miss Mann will act as assistant advertising manager of the Greetings, the College paper. Miss Mann is a member of Lambda Alpha Mu Literary society and will serve as financial rush captain this fall.

Carrollton callers in the city yesterday included Mr. and Mrs. Joe Schrader.

B. L. Hornbeck of Winchester spent Saturday here shopping.

WINCHESTER PROJECT IS PROGRESSING

To Provide Waterworks System For City—Other News Notes

Winchester, Sept. 22.—Winchester citizens are looking ahead with much expectation to December when their new $22,000.00 Iron Removal and Filtration Waterworks Plant will commence operation. The project is being financed through a P. W. A. allotment and grant from the federal government. It was designed by city's engineers, Wood, Walraven and Tillie of Springfield, to correct the present water supply which is drawn from wells on the Grout farm south east of the city. The supply has always been plentiful and healthful but it's large quantities of minerals make it very hard and obnoxious to many users. The improvement to the system, now in the process of construction, will provide soft, filtered and purified water for commercial and home use and bring about a long anticipated plan to rectify defects in the present system.

Construction operations began in July of this year by Smirl and Gibson of Jacksonville, the contractors, with the excavation for the four units which comprise the plant to be located at the site of the present water tower south of the city. According to an interview with Robert H. Sedgwick, the federal resident engineer, the plant for treatment, filtration and purification of the water will be composed of the mixing basin, settling basin, filter and pump house, and clear well reservoir. The latter has an equal capacity to that of the elevated tower. Alum and lime are the constituents used for mineral removal in processing the raw water. Jets of air for agitation together with modern clarifier mechanism comprise the initial preparation for conditioning.

Mr. Sedgwick pointed out that further treatment follows as the water is drawn into the filter building and finally to its destination in the clear well and tank where it is ready for consumption purposes. Provisions have been made for by-passing the entire plant in cases of emergency without effecting the continuity of supply.

Notable of the construction of the project is the exclusive use of local labor, confined to the limits of the city of Winchester and the distribution of skilled and non-skilled help, which is a first requisite in Federal Public Works as required by the construction regulations. The peak employment upon the project is thirty, with about twelve men being employed at the present time. Mr. Sedgwick estimated the plant to be 30 percent completed in the sixty days which have expired since work was commenced. Winchester rightly expects both a modern and model waterworks plant, upon the completion of the project in December, built by home craftsmen, supervised by competent engineering and builders skill, and a participant in the P. W. A. program.

Teachers Meet

The teachers and officers of the Baptist Sunday school held their first meeting of the year with a "pot-luck" supper in the church parlors. There was a remarkably good attendance of the teachers and officers present at the meeting. Following the most enjoyable supper the meeting was called to order by Superintendent Claude Thomas. Plans were made for Promotion Day and Rally Day and a program committee was appointed for the ensuing year. A round table discussion followed the formal business meeting.
